MORRISON R. WAITE.

DEATH OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES.

A Slight Chill Which Developed Into a Serious Malady Terminating Fatally at 6 O'Clock This Morning—The Chief Justice's Attendance at the Supreme Court Session Monday Believed to Have Aggravated His Trouble—Mrs. Waite in California—The President Shocked by the News—Adjournment of the United States Supreme Court and Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Chief Justice Waite of the United States Supreme Court died at his residence in this city at 6:10 o'clock this morning. The Chief Justice was in his usual health, though exhausted by his recent severe labors, until Saturday night, when on returning from Senator Hearst's, where with his daughter he attended a reception, he complained of a chill. This feeling passed off during the night, but he remained in bed throughout Sunday, and until time for him to go to the court on Monday, suffering then from malaria and vague indisposition, he did not read the opinion in the telephone case, but sat through its reading and then returned to his home. He was wakeful Monday night and on Tuesday morning symptoms of acute bronchitis appeared, accompanied by insomnia and great restlessness. His condition Tuesday was not alarming, but on Wednesday circumscribed pneumonia showed itself. During Thursday night he was comfortable and no particular alarm was felt, but at 6 o'clock this morning failure of the heart's action was observed, and at 6:10 he passed away. His daughter, Miss Mary F. Waite, and his son, Mr. C. C. Waite, Vice-President of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad, were with him when he died. Drs. Caroline B. Winslow and Frank A. Gardner were in attendance. Mrs. Waite left Washington for California about a week ago and is supposed now to be in Los Angeles.

THE FATAL ILLNESS.

The following are the full particulars of Justice Waite's last and fatal illness: The Chief Justice dined out on Saturday evening, and on his return home he became so ill that his family physician, Dr. Winslow, was sent for. He was confined to his bed on Sunday, and on Monday he insisted upon going to the Supreme Court to be present when the decision in the telephone suits was rendered. The weather was mild and the doctor yielded to his request, every precaution being taken to prevent any ill effects from the journey. The telephone decision had been written by the Chief Justice, but he was too ill to read it from the bench and that duty was therefore performed by Justice Blatchford. Special care was taken that no evidence of the Chief Justice's illness should appear, and none of the throng that heard the decision read suspected the real reason why it was announced by Justice Blatchford. As soon as possible after the reading, Justice Waite left the bench and was hurriedly driven home. It is admitted that the trip to the Capitol was far from prudent in Justice Waite's condition, but it is asserted that no serious consequence can be ascribed to it. The Chief Justice was determined to go and

THE DOCTOR HAD TO YIELD.

He went back to bed and since then had been a very sick man. Miss Waite was the only member of the family at home, her mother being on the Pacific coast and her brother and sister-in-law in Cincinnati. The Chief Justice's son was telegraphed for, and he and his wife reached Washington yesterday. In the afternoon a consultation of physicians was held in the sick chamber. None of the Supreme Court Justices had any information to give to inquirers, and extraordinary efforts were made by all having knowledge of the facts to keep the Chief Justice's illness a secret. Arrangements have been made for the speedy return of Mrs. Waite.

FORMER ILLNESS.

Justice Waite's illness was due at first to trouble with his liver and spleen, complicated with very painful stomach disorders. Justice Waite had a very serious fit of sickness just at the close of the administration of President Arthur. He was confined to his house for several weeks with an attack of erysipelas that threatened at one time to have a fatal termination. The serious character of his illness at that time was not generally known until after the crisis had been passed and it was not until he became well enough to be up and about his house on I street that newspaper paragraphs appeared reporting him to be in danger. The Justice was a hale man to look at, but he had a stroke of paralysis some years ago and his friends have been solicitous about him on that account, fearing a recurrence of old symptoms. After his recovery from this illness he traveled and sought recreation by prolonged abstention from the duties of the Supreme Court.

Arrangements for the funeral have not as yet been made. The Chief Justice will be buried in Toledo, O.

THE SUPREME COURT ADJOURNS.

Associate Justice Miller, the senior member of the court, after leaving the residence of the late Chief Justice sent invitations to his fellow members to meet him at the consultation room of the court, where they all assembled at 11 o'clock, remaining closeted together until noon. The Attorney-General and leading members of the bar were present in the court-room when the court assembled and the seats outside the rail were filled with spectators. The chair of the Chief Justice was simply draped with crape, but in no other respect did the appearance of the chamber give any indication of the mournful nature of the occasion. When the court entered the chamber the Marshal announced "The Honorable Associate Justice of the Supreme Court," varying the usual formula by the omission of the title of the deceased. When the court and the assemblage were seated, Justice Miller in a low broken voice said:

"It is my painful duty to announce to the bar of this court that its honored Chief Justice departed this life this morning at 6:30 o'clock. This is not the occasion to make any extended observance on the subject, which will be done in due time. The court will adjourn until 12 o'clock on Monday, April 2."

Thereupon the court and the assemblage retired.

THE PRESIDENT NOTIFIED.

The President was informed of the death of the Chief Justice by Col. Lamont. The latter was at his residence preparing to go to the White House, when a messenger arrived with a note from Mr. C. C. Waite, son of the Chief Justice, saying that his father died this morning and requesting him to notify the President. He also received a letter from Dr. Ruth of the navy giving him the same information and adding a few details as to the cause of death. Col. Lamont proceeded at once to the White House and found the President in the library opening his mail. The President was very much shocked at the intelligence. He was aware that the Chief Justice had been in bad health for a time but he was not prepared to hear of his death. Quite an intimacy had sprung up between the two officials since the President's term began, and the latter has often been heard to express himself in terms of the highest praise of the Chief Justice's character and ability. The President immediately wrote a letter to Mrs. Waite, expressing his deep sympathy for her in her sad bereavement, which he said was not only a personal loss to himself but a great loss to the public service.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

2:15 p. m.—The following official notice of the death of Chief Justice Waite has just been issued by the Department of State:

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES:

The painful duty devolves on the President to announce the death at an early hour this morning at his residence, in this city, of Morrison R. Waite, Chief Justice of the United States, which exalted position he had filled since March 4, 1874, with honor to himself and high usefulness to his country.

In testimony of respect to the memory of the honored dead, it is ordered that the Executive offices in Washington be closed on the day of the funeral and be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that the national flags be displayed at half-mast on the buildings and on all the national vessels the day of the funeral.

By the President: T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

Washington, March 23, 1888.

THE SENATE MOURNERS.

President Pro tem Ingalls has appointed Senators Sherman, Hoar, Wilson (Iowa), Pugh and George as the committee to represent the Senate at the funeral of Chief Justice Waite. Senator Edmunds was selected as the first member of the committee, but was excused on account of ill health.

ACTION BY THE SENATE.

When the Senate convened this morning, the clerk proceeded to read the journal of yesterday, when Mr. Edmunds rose and moved that its further reading be dispensed with. That order having been taken, the presiding officer laid before the Senate a communication from Mr. Justice Miller, notifying the Senate (by the direction of the Supreme Court of the United States) that the Chief Justice died at his residence this morning at 6:30.

Mr. Edmunds then rose and said (the Senate chamber being unusually hushed): "Mr. President, on the 21st of January, 1874, Chief Justice Waite received his commission and took his seat presiding officer of that great tribunal, and for now more than fourteen years, partially in times of great excitement and difficulty and struggle, and through a career in that court and out of it, embracing questions of the widest importance to human rights, both of liberty and property, the Chief Justice has been the conspicuous figure in the jurisprudence of this nation, and perhaps not less conspicuous in respect of the jurisprudence of the whole world. His career is ended for this life. It has been touched in these fourteen years, by no stain, by no reproach, by no fault or failing, either official or personal. Upright, brave, even-minded, impartial, patient, affectionate, kindly, as a citizen, and in every walk of private life he has filled his career with honor, great honor, to himself and with infinite benefit to his country. I move, Mr. President, that the chair appoint a committee of five Senators to take such action as may be expedient in respect to attending the funeral of the Chief Justice, and to other matters concerning it. (Agreed to.) I now move that, as a further mark of respect, the Senate do now adjourn till Monday next."

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate adjourned till Monday.

ACTION IN THE HOUSE.

When the House convened this morning, on motion of Mr. Matson of Indiana the consideration of the Logan and Blair pension bills was postponed until Monday next. The Speaker laid before the House a communication from Justice Miller of the Supreme Court, announcing the death of the Chief Justice.

E. B. Taylor of Ohio said: "It seems that the great office that was occupied yesterday by Mr. Morrison R. Waite is vacant today. It is second in dignity to none that I know of in the whole civilized world. It has been occupied by him for many years with an ability, an industry, a disposition to conscientiously discharge his whole duty in such a way that to-day the whole nation is in mourning for his decease. This is not a time for an eulogy, nor in fact for any extended remarks, but for the purpose of exhibiting the fact that this House has a respect for his memory, I ask the clerk to read and the House to adopt the following resolution:

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives has heard of the death of Chief Justice Waite of the Supreme Court of the United States which occurred this morning at 7 o'clock, with feelings of deep and sincere sorrow.

Resolved, That while the nation mourns the loss of one of its most illustrious sons, it is fitting that the House, representing the people, express its deepest sympathy with the family of the deceased in their affliction.

Resolved, That the House will attend in a body the funeral of the late Chief Justice, and the Speaker is requested to appoint a committee consisting of nine members to act as such a committee of the Senate in any necessary action relating to the funeral.

Resolved, That as an additional mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the House do now adjourn.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and the House at 12:25 o'clock adjourned until to-morrow.

The committee appointed by the Speaker to represent the House is as follows: William D. Kelley of Pennsylvania, G. E. Seney of Ohio, Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio, W. C. P. Breckenridge of Kentucky, John W. Stewart of Vermont, H. H. Carlton of Georgia, Jos. G. Cannon of Illinois, A. R. Anderson of Iowa, and C. A. Russell of Connecticut.

The News in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, March 23.—The announcement of the death of Chief Justice Waite comes with peculiar sadness to many people in Cincinnati. Aside from what is known of him as a public man by all, he has been the honored acquaintance and friend of a large circle of citizens, by reason of his residence here in 1878, when he was President of the Ohio Constitutional Convention, and also by the fact of his frequent visits to his son, Mr. C. C. Waite, Vice-President of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad. To all who knew him the news of his death is most unwelcome.

The Times-Star says editorially: "Few men have won and kept the friendship of all associates as a private citizen and the respect of all parties as a public official so long and thoroughly as M. R. Waite. No one has left a more enviable record as a practitioner and jurist, and the death of no public man in the country would be more widely or sincerely mourned. His honors came as the rewards of merit and not as the fruits of self-seeking. It is no secret that he has been named for the highest honor in the gift of the nation, and that he has discouraged such talk, believing that political ambition should never sully judicial robes. His sudden death leaves an unexpired and most important vacancy to be filled by appointment of the President, and it is one of the indecencies of modern politics that the same disputes which announce the Chief Justice's death are accompanied by others canvassing the chances of his possible successor."

In this connection it may be said that in the first haste to suggest a successor here the general voice gives the name of Hon. Wm. S. Groesbeck. Of course there is no such thing as a "movement" in that direction, but that is the common talk of the street, as men in private discuss the news and the possibilities.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING.

President Goodal called the Chamber of Commerce to order at 1 o'clock this afternoon and announced the death of Chief Justice Waite. He said that although the deceased was not a member of this body, yet it was fitting that such announcement as this should be made in consideration of the fact that the late Chief Justice was a distinguished citizen of Ohio. On motion of Chaplain C. N. Holloway, a committee of eleven was appointed to report a proper memorial.

At His Early Home.

TOLEDO, March 23.—The announcement of the death of Chief Justice Waite caused a profound impression in this, his early home. Flags are flying at half mast at 9 o'clock this morning.

THE DEAD CHIEF JUSTICE.

Mr. Waite's Appointment to the Position He Occupied a Compromise.

The striking events of his life are few, and his elevation to the position he occupied at the time of his death was the result of a compromise. Caleb Cushing was nominated to be Chief Justice by President Grant, but there developed such intense opposition to his confirmation that his name was withdrawn. Mr. Cushing was then sent to Spain as Minister. George H. Williams, who was Attorney-General in President Grant's Cabinet, was nominated for the place, but his name had also to be withdrawn. The Bar Association of New York adopted strong resolutions against Williams, and it became evident he would not be confirmed. Then the name of Morrison Remick Waite of Ohio was nominated. The following is the comment made on the nomination by the Nation: "The President in selecting Mr. Waite for the Chief Justiceship has, with remarkable skill, avoided choosing any first-rate man. Mr. Waite stands in the front rank of second-rate lawyers. He is little known in his own State and would not be known at all if he had not been one of the counsel at Geneva, a position which he owed, it is said, to the recommendation of Mr. Delano." However it was generally conceded that Mr. Waite was an honest man, and he was confirmed by a practically unanimous vote of the Senate, sixty-three members voting for confirmation and nine not voting or absent. He took the oath of office on March 4, 1874.

Mr. Waite was born at Lyme, Conn., November 29, 1816. Justice Miller of the Supreme bench was born in April of the same year. Henry Matson Waite his father, was Judge of the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors. The late Chief Justice was sent to Yale, where he graduated in 1837. He studied law under his father for a year and then removed to Ohio, where he placed himself under Samuel M. Young of Maumee City. In 1839 he was admitted to the bar and practiced in Maumee City and Toledo until 1874 with small interruptions. His brother, Richard Waite, was associated with him for the last eighteen years of the time. He was elected to the Ohio Legislature in 1849, and served one term, but having no taste for politics did not again attempt to win election. He was sent to Geneva as one of the counsel for the United States before the arbitration tribunal in 1871, and on his return was by the unanimous choice of both political parties elected to be a member of the Constitutional Convention of Ohio. That body made him its presiding officer.

Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase was Mr. Waite's predecessor on the Supreme Bench, and died in Washington, May 7, 1871. President Grant did not make any nomination to fill the vacancy until 1873 and it was not until March 4, 1874, that Mr. Waite took the oath of the office. His life after that date was not marked by any events of importance. In 1875 he wrote a letter declining to allow his name to be used in connection with the Presidency, which was regarded as an able effort, though his chances for securing the nomination were at all times small. Mr. Waite's wife and one daughter survive him.

A TERRIBLE COLLISION.

Burned to a Crisp—Killed by a Falling Tree—Casualties.

PITTSBURG, March 23.—Two passenger trains on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad collided near Wampum, Pa., forty miles from Pittsburg, about 8 o'clock this morning, and were badly wrecked. One man was instantly killed and several others seriously injured. Their names were: S. P. Gray, baggagemaster, killed; Wm. Harkness, fireman train No. 1, cut about the head and shoulders, probably fatally injured; Geo. Orr, engineer No. 1, slightly hurt; Thomas B. Roe, fireman No. 6, both feet mashed and arm broken; Charles Bowman, conductor, not badly injured. Four passengers were also injured, but their names could not be learned, as they were taken to their homes at Beaver Falls.

The accident is supposed to have been caused by a mistake in orders. It appears that passenger train No. 1, going west, had orders to pass No. 6, going east, at Wampum, and that No. 6 was ordered to go on to Beaver Falls. Both trains started at the same time, and as No. 1 was a few minutes late the engineer tried to make it up. About three miles from Beaver Falls he saw No. 6 coming around the curve at a terrible rate of speed. He reversed the lever of the engine and then jumped. An instant later the two trains came together with a frightful crash and the cars of both trains were piled up in a heap. Both engineers and firemen were badly injured and the baggage-master was killed. A number of passengers were bruised, but none of them seriously hurt. Their escape, however, was remarkable, as both trains were badly wrecked. The seriously injured were taken to Wampum, and everything possible done to alleviate their sufferings. The body of Baggagemaster Gray was found beneath the wreck terribly mangled. He was still living when taken from the ruins, but died in a few minutes. The wreck delayed trains East and West several hours. The responsibility for the accident has not yet been placed.

Burned to a Crisp.

CLINTON, Mo., March 23.—Dr. C. H. Watkins of Montrose this morning brought information of the horrible death of the little 5-year-old son of Mr. Van Brown, which occurred yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. Van Brown is a farmer, and resides two miles east of Montrose. The circumstances are as follows: The little boy went to the field where his brothers were burning brush. On his return toward the house it is thought he stopped to play with the fire, his clothes catching and burning his body to a crisp from feet to chin. A brother who heard his screams ran to him, but was too late to save him.

Accidentally Killed.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WICHITA, Kan., March 23.—J. W. Kirwin, a Metropolitan policeman, accidentally shot and killed himself this morning. He was in a second hand store examining a revolver he wanted to trade for the one he had, when in handling his own to the storekeeper it was discharged, and the bullet entered Kirwin's breast, passing into the base of the heart. He exclaimed, "Oh, my God!" and dropped dead. The officer leaves a wife and eight children and was in high standing on the police force. He came here from Chicago one year ago.

A Steamer in Distress.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., March 23.—The steamer Aguan, which was reported in distress off Highlands light, was taken in tow at 10 o'clock last night by a tug, which tried to tow her to port, but a northwest gale came on about midnight, parting them. The steamer is anchored outside at present. The United States revenue cutter Gallatin has gone from Boston to the steamer's assistance. The wind is blowing a gale.

It is feared her crew has been lost.

OLATHE, Kan., March 23.—The residence of John B. Wight, at the corner of Water and Lulu streets, burned this morning. It was occupied by the Rev. Mr. Stephenson, who was away from home at the time. His three children, who are sick, had a narrow escape from perishing in the flames. The roads were so bad that the firemen could not reach the fire until it had gained such headway that it was beyond their power to check it when they arrived. The loss is about $4,000; partly covered by insurance.

A BIG HOME-RULE PLAN

THE TRUE CHARACTER OF RITCHIE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BILL.

The Government of Counties Taken Out of the Hands of Parliament and the Crown and Placed in the People—Press Comments Concerning the Measure—Mr. Wilfred Blunt and Mr. Balfour—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 23.—The local Government bill, as it is legally entitled, continues to be the chief subject of discussion in the press of the entire kingdom. It begins to be seen that there is a big home-rule plan behind it; in fact, it is frankly stated by the advocates of the bill that the extension of the system to Scotland and Ireland is merely a matter of time. Should the proposed change prove in its test as valuable as it appears to be in theory, the policy of the opposition will be to make few, if any, amendments, so as not to delay the progress of the measure. The most surprising feature of the whole matter is the fact that the most radical change in the English Government plan known in modern times meets with from any direction. The newspapers, Radical and Conservative, unite in indorsing the measure and heaping encomiums on Mr. Ritchie. This can be explained only by the fact that the far-reaching results of the change proposed are not grasped. When the city of London, for instance, is made a county by itself and turned over to the people to govern, the change from the present system of things, when nearly all the responsible officials are appointive, can be imagined. When the control of the police, of the licensing of all public privileges, those pertaining to railway corporations included, etc., is taken away from Parliament and the Crown, and placed directly in the hands of the people, to be administered by those whom they choose to elect, London will be placed almost exactly on the basis of an American city. So many questions are involved in the bill that scarcely possible anything can be done with it at this session. It has come to stay, however, and will keep statesmen busy for a long time to come.

England.

BLUNT AND BALFOUR.

LONDON, March 23.—Mr. Wilfrid Blunt has written a letter to the Times recounting in detail the date and hour and the words that passed between himself and Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, when the latter stated that the home-rule movement was supported by half a dozen men, whom he named, and would collapse if, as he expected, they through fear of prison fled the country. If they were imprisoned, he said, they would get such severe hard labor that those without strong health would be unable to stand it. Mr. Balfour said he was sorry for Mr. Dillon, as there was some good about him. But he would get six months at hard labor, and as he was in bad health the punishment would kill him. Mr. Blunt says he understood the Chief Secretary's words to be intended somewhat as a warning to himself, and through him to the Parnellites. He again challenges Mr. Balfour to say whether his statement is correct, and declares that if he again denies the language attributed to him he will bring the testimony to corroborate it.

THE TATE DEFALCATION.

Action by the Legislature to Investigate All State Officers.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 23.—This morning the two houses of the Kentucky Legislature suspended the rules and passed the resolution agreed upon at the Democratic caucus calling for an immediate and full investigation of all of the State offices. At a secret caucus of the Democratic members of the two houses a resolution was adopted directing a committee to call upon Gov. Buckner and ask of him that he stop Auditor Hewitt from taking further part in the investigation of Treasurer Tate's affairs and the status of the State Treasury. This was done and the Governor promised the committee that the Auditor should be kept from the Treasurer's office. Those who attended made no effort to conceal the fact that a great deal of feeling has been aroused.

AGAINST THE STATE AUDITOR.

There is every indication that trouble is brewing, but no one ventures to make specific charges against any one except the missing State Treasurer. There was no hesitation on the part of the assembled Legislature in declaring that Auditor Hewitt's actions had impeded the investigation of Treasurer Tate's acts. This was the sense of the meeting, and each movement of the Auditor in the affair was discussed at length. The expressed opinion that the examination of the defaulting Treasurer's accounts had been purposely retarded by Auditor Hewitt was not contradicted, and some went so far as to implicate the Auditor in the defalcation. It was the almost unanimous opinion of the caucus that an investigation will develop more rottenness than has yet seen the light.

The Joint Legislative Committee will convene at 2 p. m. to-day, and proceed to the investigation of Treasurer Tate's private papers, etc., now under seal in the treasury vault.

THE COAL HILL OUTRAGES.

Developments in the Official Investigation at the Convict Camp.

COAL HILL, Ark., March 23.—The Board of Penitentiary Commissioners yesterday afternoon commenced the investigation of the treatment of the convicts employed in the mines. The convicts were examined behind locked doors and they declined to testify until they were assured that their names would not be given out. Dr. Cantrell examined the backs of some of the whipped convicts and found marks of the most brutal treatment. It was stated that Frank Tolbert, who had been repeatedly whipped for failing to dig sufficient coal, declined one evening to come out of the mine and a pit boss was instructed to go down and shoot him. The order was carried out and Tolbert was killed. One convict testified that the wardens administered 100 lashes to every man who failed to dig two tons of coal daily.

STARTLING TESTIMONY.

The Trial of the Bald Knobbers Progressing at Ozark.

OZARK, Mo., March 23.—The trial of John A. Matthews, the Bald Knobber, commenced yesterday afternoon. His wife and children were in court. Chas. Graves gave some new testimony concerning the Edens-Greene tragedy. He was present at the meeting after the murder and heard David Walker say, in the presence of Matthews, that if some one would take his son to Douglas County he would go back with the band, kill the woman and children and burn the house.

Proceedings of the Methodist Episcopal Conference at Sedalia, Mo.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

SEDALIA, Mo., March 23.—The third day of the Conference of the M. E. Church met at 8:30 this morning, Bishop Walden presiding. After devotional exercises, led by Rev. Hughey of Carthage, reports were called for on benevolent claims and the following chairmen reported: A. M. Hackney, Appleton City; A. H. Hamlen, Clinton; James Pine, Clinton; A. L. Walker, Malta Bend; J. M. Galbreath, Rockville; J. H. Gillespie and A. Jump, Sedalia; W. Stephens, Smithton; M. B. Wood, Tipton; L. A. Markham, Warrensburg; J. B. Daniels, Windsor.

J. B. Vanvetton, Professor in Clavarac College, New York, who was formerly a member of this Conference, asked to be kept in relation with it.

The following having been examined as deacons by the committee were approved by the conference: W. T. Piles, Knobnoster; Henry A. Toland, Montrose; E. F. S. Darly, Dadesville; G. A. Glenn, Cuba; W. T. Wright, Carterville; A. M. Hammond, Oronoga.

Bishop Walden then gave a brief statement of the duties devolving upon the minority and the fact that the church is working for preachers. He said that Christian character was one of the first elements; a preacher must be a converted man of a clear experience, devoted wholly to God and his work; a preacher who can take the word of God and expound it, so it will express the power of God and his salvation. The work of the conference is progressing satisfactorily. The appointments to the different churches will be made on Monday morning.

A PECULIAR CASE.

Which Coroner Frazer and the Police Are Trying Hard to Solve.

Coroner Frazer and the police are investigating a peculiar case. Last Wedesday at 4:30 p. m., while William O'Connell, an employe of the Water Department, was hunting for a leak in a water pipe he happened to look into the sewer inlet at the Southwest corner of Eleventh and Sidney streets. There he found the body of a white male infant. He notified Officer Flesh, who had the body taken to the Morgue. It was the body of a child at least 9 or 10 day old and did not appear to have been dead longer than thirty-six hours. The body was entirely nude, which is strange, considering the age of the child. There were no marks of violence on it and it is not yet known whether it died a natural death and was placed there by its mother to avoid the expense of a burial or whether it was murdered by being thrown in there and smothering. The police have been inquiring about the neighborhood to learn if any child recently died and was not buried, but so far have been unable to learn anything. The inquest will be kept open for some time in hopes of learning something.

Long Drawn Out.

A case on which considerable time was expended was tried yesterday before Justice Manning, the contestants being R. C. Hitaffer, a carpenter, and Dr. F. D. Davidson, a resident of Rinkelville, in which Hitaffer sued Davidson for $119 for work done on Davidson's house. The defendant claimed that the charges were exorbitant, and therefore, contested the claim. Numerous witnesses were introduced and about nine hours' time was consumed in hearing the evidence, the trial ending at 8 o'clock last night. The decision was reserved until to-morrow.

"MAXWELL'S" FATHER

CALLS ON THE GOVERNOR AND IS MUCH PLEASED WITH HIS VISIT.

The Old Man Leaves for Home To-Night Well Satisfied With "Hugh's Chances"—Members of Parliament and Other English Dignitaries Are Working for His Son and Influence Is Being Brought to Bear Even on the United States Supreme Court—The Long Petition Hugh's Brother Sent Over From Hyde.

HIS morning Samuel N. Brooks, father of Hugh Mottram Brooks, alias Maxwell, returned from a trip to Jefferson City, whither he went to have an interview with the Governor. To-night Mr. Brooks will take the train for New York, from which place he sails for home early Wednesday morning on the Britannica. As was stated the other day, he is compelled to leave so as to be in attendance at an important examination to be held in the schools of Hyde, England, of which he is superintendent.

"I was very much pleased with my trip to Jefferson City," remarked the old gentleman this morning. "A very nice man indeed is Gov. Morehouse. I had a pleasant talk with him. The Governor spoke very nicely, but of course would make no promises as to commuting Hugh's sentence, as the matter is not yet before him and it would be improper for him to commit himself until he has examined into the case. He treated me splendidly, however, and I am glad I made the trip. I wanted to see him before I left. A also met several other gentlemen in Jefferson City and they were all most kind. As I did not go to procure any signatures to the petition to the Governor in Hugh's behalf, I did not take any copies of the petition along and made no effort to secure signatures. My only object was to see and talk with the Governor. The other day I received from my son in Hyde a petition containing about 400 names. It is signed by all the public officials in Hyde, the Mayor, Council and everybody. In addition to them it bears the signatures of the Roman Catholic priest of the city, all the Protestant clergy and every prominent citizen of the place.

Samuel N. Brooks.

I TOLD MY SON

to only get the names of the leading citizens, and not to make any attempt to get others. If he had sought the names of what is known as the working classes he could have gotten thousands of names, but I desired the signatures of people whom I thought would have some weight. He has procured the doctors, lawyers and professional men of all kinds, merchants, men who are at the head of manufacturing establishments, bank cashiers and managers of big institutions. There are some very heavy manufacturing concerns in Hyde, and the petition contains the names of all the heads of these establishments. I have gone over the list carefully, and there is not a professional man or prominent citizen in the place who has not signed the petition. When I wrote my son to get it up I gave him no instructions as to how to prepare it, and it is in different form from the petitions got up here, but reads very nicely. Then I have received another petition from England. It is from the man under whom Hugh studied law in Stockport, Mr. Richard Brown. I should say it contained about one hundred names. All the solicitors and court attaches of the place, the people with whom Hugh came in contact and was acquainted with, signed it. I think these petitions will have some weight as they are signed by men of standing in the community. Some of the men who signed it in Hyde employ as many as 500 or 600 men. There are some very large manufacturing concerns there. I would have left before this only I wanted to wait until the United States Supreme Court had passed on the motion for a rehearing in the case. I supposed they would do it last Monday but they did not, and now I expect them to do it next Monday. If they do it will be before I have left the country. But there is no telling when they will pass upon it.

THEY MAY DELAY

the matter for a long time. As it is so uncertain when the question will be passed upon I have concluded not to wait any longer, particularly as my services are needed at home. Still I am glad the court is taking its time about this matter, as I have some influences at work on them and the more time they have to work the better. Just what these influences are I do not care to state, but there are some of the most prominent men of England interceding for Hugh. There are some members of Parliament among them. I do not care to mention any names because I have applied to a number, and possibly I may fail to secure the aid of some, and it would be unpleasant to mention their names and then not have their assistance. Everything seems to look very bright, and I am feeling quite good over the outlook. I have been very successful in my work of securing signatures here to and have been very fairly and kindly treated by the people of St. Louis. I feel very thankful to them for the manner in which they have acted toward me. My daughter is making some articles for the Roman Catholic Church festival in Hyde. I told her she must do so, because Rev. Father Teehan and the Roman Catholics have been very kind to Hugh here. I believe in people being liberal in their views and I dislike bigotry."

PLAIN TALK.

BISHOP C. H. FOWLER ADDRESSES THE CANDIDATES FOR ORDERS.

Dissertations of Divines at the Central Missouri Conference at Wesley Chapel—Methodist Episcopalians Urged to Study the English Language—More Ideas and Fewer Big Words Wanted.

The session of the Central Missouri Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was opened at Wesley Chapel this morning with Bishop C. H. Fowler in the chair. Local preachers for orders were called. One response was made from North Missouri District and two from Rolla, when the credentials of G. A. Mastor of Ironton, who was represented by his pastor and presiding elder, being read, he was elected. Rev. Dr. Cranston of the Western Methodist Book Concern and Dr. Stone next made addresses, whereupon the candidates for orders were addressed by the Bishop in a plain talk that alternately excited laughter and fervent amens. He said that he would, above all, urge upon them the necessity of good English, without which it was impossible to succeed or to be respected. Good English was a great deal better than poor Greek, and this could not be understood any too well. This was the day of education, and while their children were learning let they themselves remember that if they failed to study the cars would be in danger of running over the locomotive. It should not be forgotten that singular verbs were governed by singular nouns, though a good many of the brethren did forget this to their sorrow. For all the preacher knew the newspapers took advantage of this and made sport of the mistakes in order to amuse their readers, though to be sure he never read the report and could not be sure of this.

EDUCATIONAL NECESSITIES.

Nor was the necessity of good writing less urgent, writing at least that the writer could read himself. During the conference a letter had been received from a brother who had tendered his withdrawal by letter, and the letter would have made a monkey laugh. He would speak to them also of the matter of sermons. When they saw a preacher whose preaching appeared to interest the people let them see wherein he pleased and imitate him. But they musn't use big words. To be sure, many syllables astonished and puzzled some auditors, but they accomplish nothing more. Ideas were what the people wanted and not words, which rattled around in a sad fashion when confined in little thoughts. Let them not elaborate, then, and see how far they could string out a line of thought, but prune things down. If it was necessary to take eight hours a day for a whole week to write out one sermon, let them take it, for he had never seen a congregation that was not willing to hear better sermons than were preached to them. If they would study and preach and watch, then in five years they would be in demand throughout the state. But let them fail to study and content themselves with chattering a little of a Sunday, and it would be only a question of time when congregations would be complaining and the young people would not put up with the old ignoramuses. And if they must get up more than one sermon a week, why let them cock their guns and fire off their wads; probably just as much noise would be made as if they were loaded. Let them talk extemporaneously, then, and some one would be bound to come up and say it was the very best that had ever been preached in that church. But, take care! These were only pious souls who were trying to brace them up.

WHERE DANGER LIES.

Nor should the pastoral visits be forgotten. Let every preacher get to work at 7 o'clock in the morning, just as a grocery clerk would if he expected to earn his wages. But the visits should be pastoral, not social, and fearful would they be last any action of theirs performed bring the blush of shame to their cheek. Let them remember that they entered these houses as Methodist preachers; in any other capacity they would be kicked out, and they knew it.

To which the devout brethren answered "Amen."

Continuing the bishop dwelt on the feeding of the lambs, reminding his auditors to gauge the nourishment according to the age of the flock and remember that they were lambs and not giraffes. Children he admired, together with all those who had grown up in the faith, but for sinners he could not say as much. "These old converted sinners," explained the bishop, "remind me of the tavern-keeper who had for a sign over his name the likeness of a bear. After a time he grew weary of the sign and wished to change it, so he took some fresh paint and applied it to both name and bear, afterwards making a new design. This was all right till a hard rain came and washed the paint. Then the bear could be seen faintly appearing through the new coat. And this is just the way it is with an old sinner.

SINNERS AS CONVERTS.

"His conversion is a good thing for him, but not nearly so good for the church. He likes the novelty at first, but pretty soon comes a hard rain, and then you see the bear."

This amused the Bishop's auditors very much, as did similar tales and anecdotes with which the speaker diversified his remarks. When he had concluded the candidates before him arose, and were put through a series a questions, such as, "Are you resolved to devote yourself wholly to God and his works?" "Do you believe the doctrines of our church are in harmony with the holy scripture?" "Do you preach and maintain them?"

It was different when the question was put: "Do you wholly abstain from the use of tobacco?" and as a dead silence followed on the part of the candidates a suppressed guffaw went round the church. The names of these candidates were as follows:

J. W. Thomas, J. P. Bishop, Dennis Payton, R. Crosby, Wm. A. Smith, F. Sales, J. W. Baker, C. J. Lawton of the Methodist Episcopal Church; T. S. Johnson of the Central Methodist Episcopal, B. F. McDonald of the African Methodist Episcopal and J. B. Bell of the Zion Methodist Episcopal Church.

The examination was interrupted and deferred to a later time in order to enable Dr. Chas. Payne of the Ohio Wesleyan University and Dr. J. W. Cox of the Sunday School Union to make addresses. The former moved his auditors by referring to the wonderful growth of Methodism, and to the days of slavery, while the latter spoke on the importance of the Sunday-school. Other addresses were made, the talks consuming so much time that the election of delegates to the General Conference, and the choosing of the location for the next session of Central Missouri Conference could not be accomplished. It was after 12:30 when the meeting adjourned. Miss Jennie Beck of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society being announced to speak this afternoon.

Smuggled Opium.

Longoardi Sentenced.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Guiseppe Longoardi, who was convicted on Wednesday last of manslaughter in the first degree for the killing of young John Barrett on October 16, last, was to-day sentenced in the Court of General Sessions to twenty years in State prison.

Twenty years was the full penalty prescribed by the law for the offense of which Longoardi was convicted. He received his sentence stoically. Young Barrett's father, Officer John Barrett, was in court, and with an open penknife in his hand after the sentence was administered, made towards his son's slayer, but was intercepted and disarmed. It is believed that he intended to use the weapon on Longoardi, as he has often threatened to take his life. This affair created quite a stir in the court-room.

DOINGS IN THE COURTS.

JUDGE SEDDON DENIES A SPECIAL SETTING OF THE LANCASTER-GLOVER CASE.

An Opinion Setting Forth the Court's Views in the Matter—A Turn at the Default Divorce Mill To-Day—Cases of Matrimonial Misfit Presented—Damage Suits on Trial Before the Circuit Court—New Litigation.

Judge Seddon to-day refused to grant a special setting for the Lancaster-Glover libel suit. He handed down an opinion as follows: "An application is made by the defendant John M. Glover concurred in by the plaintiff for a special setting of the case. The Court has generally set itself rigidly against special settings for such applications are usually nothing more than applications to postpone the rights of others. Every litigant has the same right to have his case heard at its proper place on the docket, as he has to have justice done him. We have had intimation from both counsel that the trial of this case will consume from ten days to two weeks. We set thirty cases a week, not including the law docket. If this case is specially set, it will result in the court's usurping the places of sixty cases and the rights of at least 120 litigants.

"The case will be regularly reached about the 15th of May. It will be much more agreeable to try a case likely to be so protracted before the warm weather, but it cannot be done in justice to others. As a reason for a special setting, it is urged that the case is of public consequence and that the defendant is a public servant whose time will necessarily be taken from his duties. While the case involves the character of two public officials, the public really have no more interest in the issues involved than in any other case. It will settle no question of public right.

"It has not been suggested that the defendant's services will be less valuable to the public in May than in April. The application for a special setting will be denied."

The Default Divorce Docket.

Judge Seddon to-day took up the cases of default divorce in Court No. 2 for the term about to close, and disposed of them after hearing the law docket. The following samples of matrimonial misery were presented:

M'DONALD VS. M'DONALD.

Margaret J. McDonald asked for a decree of divorce from Frank McDonald. They were married in 1871 in this city, and they lived together until the 9th of January of the present year. Mrs. McDonald alleged that her husband neglected his family in a shameful manner, failing to furnish them with food and clothing. He spent his earnings in drink and dissipation, and at times was too lazy to work at all. After earning some money he would absent himself from home for days and squander his earnings among people of dissolute habits. Mrs. McDonald further alleged that her husband treated her in a cruel manner, insulted her with false accusations, threatened to kill her and called her vile names, rendering her condition intolerable.

WEHRMAN VS. WEHRMAN.

Wilhelmina Wehrman sought a decree of divorce from Henry Wehrman. They were married on the 5th of December, 1869, and they lived together until the 28th of January, 1887. Mrs. Wehrman alleged that her husband was intemperate in his habits and that he neglected his family, utterly failing to support them. There were three children by the marriage and they all died. The father failed to furnish the money for the burial. Mrs. Wehrman asked for restoration of her maiden name, Wilhelmine Gerlemann.

HUDSON VS. HUDSON.

Martha E. Hudson asked for a decree of divorce from William P. Hudson. They were married on the 11th of January, 1874, and they separated on the 25th of January, 1885. Mrs. Hudson alleged that she always treated her husband kindly, and did her duty faithfully as a wife and that she was deserted by her husband without any cause.

BABURCK VS. BABURCK.

Mary Baburck petitioned the Court for a decree of divorce from Albert Baburck. They were married in this city on the 4th of January, 1875, and on the 26th of August, 1880, she alleged that her husband abandoned her without any cause. He failed for a long time to contribute to the support of his family. Mrs. Baburck asked for the custody of the children and for restoration of maiden name, Mary Clemens.

KEMPF VS. KEMPF.

Theresa Kempf applied for a decree of divorce from George Kempf. The marriage took place November 7, 1878, and they lived together until July 19, 1886. Mrs. Kempf alleged that her husband was guilty of improper relations with other women. She asked for the custody of the three children and for alimony.

Killed by the Elevator.

A jury was called into the box to-day in Judge Dillon's court for the trial of the Moran damage suit against the McLean estate and the St. Louis Shoe & Slipper Company. John and Bridget Moran sue for the loss of their daughter Annie, a girl of 15 years, who was killed by the elevator in a factory on Collins street. The property is owned by the McLean estate, and the Shoe and Slipper Company are tenants of the upper floors. The little girl was in the employ of the Slipper Company, and was injured in the head by the fall of the elevator, which was in a defective condition at the time. She died of her injuries on the 6th of last August.

Notes in Court.

Judge Valliant has granted an alternative writ in the proceeding of the Circuit Attorney at the instance of the State Insurance Department against the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen returnable in court on Saturday, the 31st inst. Particulars of this suit were published exclusively in the POST-DISPATCH of Wednesday last. The ejectment suits of Hibbs against the Iron Mountain Railroad Company relative to the property on Main street, near Chouteau avenue, is still holding the attention of Judge Barclay and a jury.

Judge Dillon to-day granted an injunction at the petition of John H. Gundlach against John A. Wallace, Wm. H. Garland and E. G. Obear. Messrs. Wallace and Garland are enjoined from selling, transferring, or otherwise disposing of some notes executed by Mr. Gundlach in purchase of some lots in the Forest City addition until a prior lien encumbering the property has been removed.

An attachment suit has been filed in the Circuit Court by Wm. H. Kellogg, John H. Prentiss, Geo. Eckart, Geo. Sharp et al. against Frederick B. Severs to recover $678.21.

The will of Leonhardt Spindler was admitted to probate to-day. The property is left to the widow. Letters of administration were granted. The estate was valued at $2,000.

The particulars of the case have already been published. Foreman having completed his testimony was taken back to jail. The criminal cases will be tried in about ten days.

The suit of the Commercial Manufacturing Company against Homan Brown was dismissed to-day in the Federal Court for want of prosecution.

The return docket will be called on Monday next in the United States Circuit Court, and the jury waived docket on Monday, April 9.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WITH JEALOUS EYE

THE HENDRICKS ASSOCIATION REGARDS THE VEST DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

A Suspicion That the Club Is a Disguised Silk Stocking Movement—Testing the Halls—Democratic Census Taking—Ward Club Organizations—Organization of the St. Louis Republicans—State Clubs to Be Formed—Political Notes.

A spirit of rivalry has sprung up between the Hendricks Association and the Vest Club, the two Democratic organizations which are looked to by the voting herd to to direct the fight in the coming campaign. A suspicion has crept into the hearts of the Hendricks Association managers that it is the intention of the Vest Club to gradually get the control of the party in St. Louis. In its organization the Vest Club has shown no kinship with the Hendricks Association. Comptroller Campbell, who was blackballed in the association, was honored, during his absence from the meeting, with the Treasurership of the new organization. The ward managers of the association have also come to the conclusion that it is the intention of the club to get up a silk-stocking advisory organization and to exclude the workers, who were welcomed into the Hendricks Association. It is reported that some of the Hendricks members who contemplated applying to the club for admission have been quietly advised not to present their claims for recognition. The jealousy between the organizations is already marked. The Association members fears that the inter organization is aimed to gather the high-toned Democrats into its ranks under the guise of doing honor to "Missouri's little giant," and then to make the Association play second fiddle in the campaign.

Testing the Halls.

This morning Messrs. Francis, Galennie, Rainwater, Prather and Ellerbe of the Sub-Committee on Halls visited the Exposition Building to test the acoustic arrangements of the halls. Under the direction of Mr. Leopold Methudy and the Directors of the National Saengerfest, Architect Kledus is preparing the north nave. The display cases and platforms have been removed preparatory to fitting out the nave for the festival. Standing at one end of the hall a speaker can easily make himself distinctly heard at the other end without any great effort. Music Hall was also visited. This of course would require very few changes to prepare it for the reception of the National Convention. The committee did not intend to fix positively on either hall, but proposed rather by actual test to post themselves on the advantages, so that they would be able to advise with the National Sub-Committee. Both halls are considered suitable for a convention.

Democratic Census-Taking.

The Campaign Committee of the Nineteenth Ward Democratic Club is now engaged hunting up Democratic voters who have failed to secure registration or transfers, and are accordingly not on the Recorder's books or entitled to vote. The Nineteenth Ward is now in better condition to conduct its primaries, whatever the outcome of the pol-took dispute may be, than any other ward in the city. The campaign committee has already made a thorough canvass of the ward, and with little difficulty can prepare a precinct registration. The old books of this ward are missing, having disappeared during the primaries of October, 1886.

The Tenth Ward Club.

The Tenth Ward Democratic League, which promises to become one of the strong organizations of the campaign, held a meeting last evening at No. 1450 North Thirteenth street. The committee on constitution and by laws reported. The report was accepted. Under the constitution none but Democrats are eligible for membership, and each member is pledged to support no candidate for office except Democratic aspirants. Secretary Pocock reported 128 names on the club rolls. Six new members were admitted and several applications for admission were received. A committee was appointed to select a suitable hall for the club and to report at the next meeting.

Republican Organization.

The St. Louis Republican Club was organized last evening at the Lindell Hotel. The club is organized on the plan of the New York League Club. The meeting was called to order by Chairman A. C. Widdicombe, in response to whose invitation the Republicans met last evening. Speeches were made by E. O. Stanard, D. P. Grier, R. C. Kerens and E. S. Rowse. D. D. Fisher was elected Temporary Chairman, W. W. Woolcock, Secretary and E. S. Rowse, Treasurer. It was decided that the dues should not exceed $10. A subscription was then taken up, and within half an hour $3,800 was raised. The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the Chair.

Chairman Widdicombe of the State Central Committee will proceed to organize similar clubs in Hannibal, St. Joseph and Kansas City, and will follow up this work by establishing smaller organizations at different points throughout the State.

The Parties in Lafayette County.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

LEXINGTON, Mo., March 23.—Notice has been issued by the Chairman of that body that the term of its office as the Democratic Executive Committee of this (Lafayette) county expires April 10, and requesting the Democratic voters to meet at their respective precincts to elect a member from each township to such committee on April 7, and the members so chosen to meet in this city the following Monday for organization.

David Gray, the Republican committeeman for Lexington Township, has issued a call for a meeting of the Republicans of this (Lexington) township to be held Thursday evening in this city for the purpose of organizing a club. One township Republican club in Sniabar Township has already been organized.

A Straight Democratic Ticket.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

CARTHAGE, Mo., March 23.—The Democrats of this city held a meeting last night at the W. C. T. U. rooms, to decide their course of action in regard to the city election. After spirited discussion it was resolved to put a straight Democratic ticket in the field. Upon the election of School Board Directors the determination is that unless two Democrats are allowed upon it, the Democrats, as a whole, will not vote for any appropriations for nine months' school nor for building purposes. If the School Board be made a party fight and the tax be defeated the forty cents allowed by law would only provide for three months' school. The fight is likely to be a bitter one, as both parties are loaded for bear, looking to the fall campaign.

Judge Stratton's Candidacy.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 23.—Judge Daniel P. Stratton of Nevada is in the city. The Judge is a candidate for the nomination for Supreme Judge, and speaks quite hopefully of his prospects. His friends claim that he will carry the solid Thirteenth Congressional District and fully half of the Sixth and Twelfth Districts and of the Fourteenth. Judge Stratton has for many years been a member of the State Central Committee, and has numerous friends throughout the State.

Hon. Joseph Reese of Nodaway arrived today to accept the position of private clerk to Gov. Morehouse.

Political Notes.

Mayor Francis has returned from Macon, Mo., where he had a conference with some of his constituents.

The Young Democrats of the Twenty-fourth Ward are taking a census of their ward and testing the Democrats.

Ed Butler will shortly leave the First Ward to take up his residence in his new house at Twenty-third and Pine streets. This will put him in the Nineteenth Ward, the Democrats of which had a sample of his political powers two years ago, when he swooped down on the primaries in that ward.

A WARRANT for wife abandonment was issued to-day against John Derioch.

THE RAILROADS.

The Cattle Transportation Question—Democratic Rates—Negro Immigration.

An article in a morning paper makes it appear that the Western roads are on the eve of another war in live-stock rates. It is state that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road is using Burton palace stock cars, and is charging for them the same rate that is charged for common cars, thus making a practical cut in the rate, and it is further stated that Manager Hays of the Wabash Western is beginning to feel the shoe pinch, and has telegraphed Chairman Midgely that if this thing is not stopped he'll make a rate which will stop it. Altogether it is argued there is a great live stock war in prospect. It is asserted also that the St. Paul's revenue had been doubled.

There are so many absurdities in the article that the railroad men smiled when they read it. In the first place the St. Paul does not use the Burton palace car, but has leased a couple of hundred Street stable cars for use at Kansas City and the Rock Island uses the Burton car. Again, the St. Paul's revenue must have been exuremely small to be doubled, as only about 1/2 of these loaded cars have been run out of Kansas City, and this, too, at the same rate as the old cars and with an additional mileage to pay to the car company for their use. The Wabash or any other road can secure them for the same terms, but in the opinion of many railroad men they do not pay.

The fact is there has been for some time past trouble with regard to the palace cars because they carry more cattle than the common cars, and have arrangements for feeding and watering the stock without laying over. All the roads not using them with the possible exception of the Alton have protested against making the same rate for them, as they carry more cattle, and have urged that there should be a fair differential on them, but the Wabash Western, while protesting, is hardly in a position to lead the fight on them, as the road does not do a heavy live stock business, and a cut would simply be jumping into the fire.

Manager Hays said he had, of course, protested with the other roads, but that he had no idea of cutting, especially as he had signed the agreement to advance rates on the 26th, and proposed to work under reasonable rates for awhile. He said he was not throwing down any gauntlets just now, but there would be an attempt to settle the matter amicably. If any road should kick it is the Chicago & Alton, which carries the bulk of the live stock traffic, yet it is not doing any cutting. The chief reason the St. Paul & Rock Island adopted the improved car was for its length, as their cars were only twenty-nine feet and the new cars are 36 feet. But the Alton's common cars are 37 feet. It is claimed that the users of the new cars are amenable to the law which provides that cattle shall not be kept standing or without food and water for more than twenty-eight hours and in no case there is no room for the cattle to lie down.

As a matter of fact the real revolution is promised in the cattle traffic next month, when the Alton will put on a cattle train between Kansas City and Chicago, cutting down the time to twenty-six hours and running through without stoppage. The present time, by mutual agreement, is thirty-six hours, giving time to stop and feed, water and rest. The Alton proposes to use its large, common cars, start from Kansas City at 4 o'clock in the morning and reach Chicago at 6 o'clock the following morning. This will revolutionize the cattle transportation business, and will make the roads hump themselves to keep ap with the procession.

Democratic Convention Rates.

A telegram received to-day from Chairman Fink of the Trunk Lines Association states that that association has agreed to give one-fare limited tickets for the round trip to and from the National Democratic Convention in St. Louis, June 5. The Central Traffic Association and the Western and Southern Associations have made the same rate.

A Negro Immigrant Train.

Something unique in immigrant trains will roll into Union Depot to-morrow. It will be a train load of plantation negroes from North and South Carolina destined for Southern California. There will be 150 negroes altogether, filling three cars. The negroes are being transported to Southern California under engagement to planters there who want them to work on their plantations. The negroes will be in charge of Mr. A. A. Gallagher, the Southern Passenger Agent of the Missouri Pacific, and they will be transferred to the Missouri Pacific and will be taken via that road, and the Texas & Pacific to the West. The planters think that the negroes can be made very useful to them for field labor in Southern California, and this is the first real movement in the direction of securing them in sufficient numbers.

No Settlement in Sight.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 23.—The Central Traffic Association's Committee on Relations with Western roads has adjourned after a two days' session without having been able to come to an agreement regarding the proposed change in the proportions of through rates. All efforts made to bring about an equitable arrangement failed, owing to the opposition of the East and West cross lines, which do not like to give up the advantage the arrangement recently made gives them.

5,000 CONFIRMATION SUITS from $3.50 up to the finest. A saving of 25 per cent guaranteed.

GLOBE, 705 to 713 Franklin avenue.

The Wedding Will Not Take Place.

Miss Mamie O'Neill of 1316 South Ninth street, in a note to the POST-DISPATCH to-day, said: "I deem it necessary to announce that my engagement to Mr. Eugene F. Sailor of California, which has been announced, and my marriage, which was to take place, are now, for reasons, broken entirely off." The request concluded by asking a publication of the above, the words "for reasons" being heavily underscored. Miss O'Neill was called upon, but the family stated that, after consultation, they had decided to say nothing save what the note above mentioned contained.

Switchmen Strike.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., March 23.—The switchmen in the Erie Railroad yard at this city went on a strike this morning. It is reported that the grievances are low wages and an objectionable yardmaster.

Carondelet Jottings.

Rev. C. W. Brough left for Sedalia, Mo., yesterday.

Mr. Frank Reber departed for a brief visit to Hot Springs.

The Missouri Iron-works will resume operations on the 1st prox.

Ex-Gov. Chas. P. Johnson will lecture on "Temperance" to-morrow evening at Temperance Hall.

The steamer Gem City is still at the docks, undergoing repairs. Business at this place is, at the present, very dull.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a "O" social at Temperance Hall immediately after the close of the Lenten season.

The Mineral wool manufactory suspended work for a couple of days owing to the crowded condition of its ware-rooms.

The members of the Washington Literary Club gave a social at the residence of Miss Mamie Richardson on Virginia avenue last evening. The club is composed of a number of young ladies and gentlemen and is becoming quite popular in this locality.

The river is rising very rapidly at this place, especially around Ellwood street, where the ground is very low. A number of "squatters" who, for the winter, have had their homes in boats on the bank, are making preparations to move further up on the dry soil so as to be out of harm's way in case there should be a big rise.

At the close of the Lenten season a number of entertainments will be given by the various churches and societies as follows: At Turner Hall, Catholic Benevolent Legion, April 2; Episcopal Church, April 6; L. A. M. Club, April 7, and the Public School Library, April 17. At St. Boniface Hall, Council 212 Knights of Labor.

Judge Conger Wins.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

MT. VERNON, Ill., March 23.—In the Democratic Judicial Convention here, Judge Conger was nominated on the 276th ballot at about 10 a. m. to-day.

Most of the delegates who live east of here went home on the 1:30 train this morning. Appropriate speeches were made after the nomination was made by Judge Wall and others.

"Royal Sect" Hart arrived in the city this morning and is at the Southern.

WILL BURN THEM.

The Bell Company Collecting Telephones for a Bonfire.

At 1 o'clock to-day Vice-President J. H. Terry of the Pan Telephone Company, Franklin Ferris and Edmond A. B. Garesche of the same company met Henry Hitchcock in the latter's office by appointment. Mr. Hitchcock represents the American Bell Telephone Company. Mr. Terry wanted to make a proposition looking to a settlement of the local difficulty between the two telephone companies, but Mr. Hitchcock gave his visitors to understand he had no authority to receive a proposition. He had instructions from the American Bell Telephone Company which he was carrying out, and beyond that he could not go. On this Mr. Terry and his associates retired. The Pan directors met again this afternoon and discussed the situation.

The Pan Exchange at Fourth street and Washington avenue stopped business last December except on private line business. The private lines which pass through the exchange are connected, and no one need mind the switch board. Some of the private lines are owned absolutely by the persons who use them. The following lines are owned by the persons and companies named:

Consolidated Coal Company, four instruments, Fourth and Chestnut streets to Broadway and Angelrodt; same to Eighteenth street and Clark avenue.

Dr. Papin, two instruments, from Grand and Olive to his residence.

Cramer Dry Plate Works, two instruments, from Broadway and Chouteau avenue to works.

Laclede Gas Light Company, two instruments, from office to works.

All of the remaining sixty-four private lines controlled by the Pan Company are owned by the company. The subscribers to these have been notified by the Bell Company's attorneys that if they will surrender their instruments all claim against them for infringements on the Bell patents will be waived. The subscribers say the instruments do not belong to them, and they cannot turn over without committing larceny. To this the Bell people only respond that they have made a liberal offer. The subscribers are then placed in this position, they must either surrender the instruments they do not own and trust to having no settlement to make with the Pan Company, or they must buy the instruments of the Pan Company and turn them over, or they must stand suit for damages with the prospect of certain defeat and loss.

Of the owners of private lines the following have so far turned the infringing instruments over to the Bell Company. The St. Louis Improved Sprinkling Company, two instruments; Sprague & Sons, four instruments; Dr. Papin, two instruments; Wrought Iron Range Company, two instruments, and Scarritt Furniture Company, two instruments. When all the instruments are in they will be burned. The term in which the instruments can be turned over and suits for damages avoided expires in a large number of cases to-morrow.

WATERY WASTES.

Trains on the New York Central Delayed—Bad Washouts.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 23.—On account of the washout on the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad trains on that road from the East are five hours late this morning.

Surrounded by Ice and Water.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., March 23.—The cold wave has materially reduced the rush of water to the Mohawk River, and may prevent any more immediate damage. Train No. 3, which left New York on the Central road at 11:30 o'clock yesterday, was surrounded by water and ice for three hours near Amsterdam. Trains are running very irregularly on the Central road. The flood is the worst near Fonda, Fultonville and Fort Hunter. The damage to the broom factories at the latter place is very heavy.

Tracks Under Water.

INDEPENDENCE, Io., March 23.—The water in the Wapsi River is higher at this place than it has been for eighty years. Part of the ice went out yesterday, tearing down some buildings near the river. The ice formed a gorge above the bridge of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern Railway, the track for half a mile being under water. Freight business on that road is temporarily suspended and passengers are transferred nearly two miles.

KANSAS CITY BASE BALL.

The Wrangle Between the Two Rival Associations Getting Lively.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—The ball players of the Western and American Association Clubs are arriving in the city. Manager Dave Rowe was asked to-day: "When will the Association team play the Western Club?"

"Never," replied the Captain emphatically. "There will be no such thing as a Western Association League. We will see that Mr. Menges does not play ball and you can rely on it. The injunction has not been given up and will be served at the proper time. The matter is in the hands of an attorney and he will see that the Western team does not play ball here. The injunction will be served probably the first time it attempts to play. We have a case against it now, you mark my words."

"Can the courts handle this question after the Board of Arbitration has decided that Mr. Menges is right?"

"They certainly can. The decision of the Arbitration Committee will not be considered when the injunction is served, as that body was prejudiced in favor of Mr. Menges."

Mr. Menges laughs at the question of an injunction, and says that his club will play ball all through the season without being interfered with.

Mrs. Lamb Seriously Injured.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, the editress of the Magazine of American History, and the author of the well-known history of New York, was run down by a horse and wagon this forenoon at Astor place, Broadway, while crossing the street and seriously injured. The driver of the wagon was arrested and Mrs. Lamb removed to her home.

Belleville.

The Waugh nail mill has been shut down for want of iron.

John Donahue, a workman at Falling Springs, was badly injured by a fall of rock yesterday.

William Warner, a blacksmith at Schureman's mine, was kicked by a mule in the abdomen yesterday, and seriously, probably fatally injured.

Peter Armbruster and John Bauer, Jr., will play a match game of pool for the championship of Belleville at Evering's, Sunday. A handsome silver cup will be the prize.

Much regret was expressed here over Judge Snyder's failure to secure the nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court, but general satisfaction was expressed over the announcement in the Post's extra that the St. Clair delegation had remained steadfast to the end.

In the Circuit Court this morning hearing of arguments on the application for the appointment of a receiver for the Western Nail Mill Company was postponed until Tuesday. The damage cases of George E. Voice and Patrick O'Neil against Mr. Frank B. Bowman and Detective Furlong for malicious prosecution of them for the Bowman murder, were dismissed for want prosecution.

Mrs. Rose C. Bailey of Indianapolis, Ind., wife of the United States District-Attorney of that section of the Hoosier State, has written a piece of music called the Mrs. Cleveland March. Mrs. Bailey is well known in St. Louis, having taken part in concerts here.

REAL ESTATE.

More About the Christy Avenue Boom—Sales and Prices To-Day.

The Christy avenue boom continues to boom in defiance of the attempts of the morning papers to suppress it when they fail to get the news until after it has been published by the POST-DISPATCH. Yesterday afternoon a $14,000 sale on Christy avenue was reported in the POST-DISPATCH, and this morning the truth of the statement was confirmed by Thomas F. Farrelly, who says he purchased the property himself and gave the Citizens' Savings Bank his individual check for it. The premises as heretofore stated have a frontage of 56 by a depth of 105 feet on the north side of the avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, for which Mr. Farrelly paid $250 per front foot. Since then Mr. Farrelly says he has sold the property at a very handsome advance to a local firm whose name he does not care to divulge at present. As an evidence of the present urgent inquiry for Christy avenue sites, Mr. Farrelly alludes to the fact that there were no less than three buyers in the market, each of them anxious to get the property he bought.

A PROFITABLE SPECULATION.

Another illustration of the growing popularity of Christy avenue for business sites was afforded late this afternoon by the Anderson-Wade Real Estate Company, who realized a profit of $1,200 within thirty days on a $5,500 investment for one of their patrons, Robert McKittrick Jones. It has only been about a week since the deed to the premises No. 814 Christy avenue, which Mr. Jones purchased for $5,500, was recorded; nevertheless the property, which was bought through Anderson-Wade, was sold to-day by the same agency for $6,750 to Isaac Rusnack & Son, the clothiers. The site they have secured has a frontage of 22½x75 feet and now has an old two-story warehouse on it.

In the opinion of parties well posted on the commercial growth of the city these sales are simply indicative of others to follow on the same thoroughfare, as the property there is well adapted to wholesale business purposes, and cheap at the prices at which it has been selling.

SOLD UNDER THE HAMMER.

The two-story stone front residence and 90x140 feet of ground No. 3010 Easton avenue, the property of L. T. Bilt of New Orleans, which M. A. Wolff & Co. sold at auction yesterday afternoon, was purchased for $4,200 by J. W. Motte of the Famous, who it is said will alter the premises for business purposes. This property has heretofore been renting for $35 a month.

PREPARING TO REBUILD.

Keeley & Co. and Keferstein & Co., agents for the premises numbered 613, 615 and 617 and 619 Pine street have notified the tenants of the houses to vacate the quarters by the 1st of April, when the old buildings are to be torn down as originally stated in the POST-DISPATCH, to give place to a four-story building with an ornamental facade which will add very much to the appearance of the street, on which several other costly improvements are in contemplation for the near future.

FINNEY AVENUE IMPROVEMENTS.

Councilman Stone has informed some of the prominent property-owners on Finney avenue that the prospects are that their petition will be granted for the full improvement of the street between Vandeventer and Whittier, a distance equal to about five blocks. A discrepancy between the estimated cost of the work and the amount that can be appropriated to meet the expense is placed at $240 and it is said the prospect for raising this sum is quite favorable. In this connection it is also stated that Mr. Stone is interesting himself in a movement to have a street car line run out Finney avenue to Taylor, to return east on Cook. If this is accomplished it is predicted adjacent property will be greatly benefited, as transportation facilities are very much needed in that territory.

Notes.

B. F. Hammett will depart this evening for Washington, D. C., to visit his daughter, who is attending school there.

The committee canvassing for funds to meet the expenses of the National Convention has raised over $300 among real estate agents and expect to increase it to $600 or more before they have completed the rounds.

The Sub-Treasury Crippled in Force—Letter-Boxes—Signal Service Instruments.

Unusually large deposits are coming in to the Sub-Treasury from all over the country. To-day one Louisville bank requested the privilege of depositing $70,000 a day. These banks have been depositing at the Cincinnati Treasury heretofore. The heavy deposits from Chicago continue and the local force is much overworked and need an increase of force at once. Two men more are needed at present to handle the money. If the rush continue through the fiscal year it will be the largest year in the Sub-Treasury's history.

"I do not believe there is much rifling of letter-boxes by gummed sticks," said Postmaster Hyde this afternoon, "the present boxes cannot be changed till the box contract runs out, which will not be for a year and a half yet. The Government has a contract with a company for furnishing the present boxes and until that runs out the present kind will have to be used. When the contract expires the Government will adopt some one of the many boxes now patented. One very interesting kind has an electric connection with the city delivery, so that the superintendent can tell at once when the box is touched. I wonder if the average inventor knows that the Goverment reserves the right to use every patent, and the question of receiving compensation will be a very serious one."

Sergt. Chappel is so well pleased with his new barograph, or self-registering barometer, that he contemplates asking for a self-registering thermometer that will automatically register the fluctuations of the mercury during the day, and after awhile the self-registers will get down so fine that the observers will have nothing to do but make predictions. At present, however, they have plenty to keep them busy.

THE CHICAGO ANARCHISTS.

Startling Rumors Concerning the Reorganization of the Reds.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 23.—Referring to a vague threat made yesterday by Otto Reichel, who was arrested at the instance of the Socialistic Publishing Company on a charge of misappropriation of funds, that he would expose the secret meetings of the Anarchist groups in this city and their plans, the Times this morning says: "Reports have been circulated among people interested in the labor movement, particularly the conservative ones, within the last few weeks, to the effect that the Anarchists are reorganizing in this city and renewing their plotting against the life and property of its citizens. The rumors have become so general that they even reached the police department and the speeches made at a recent celebration of the Paris Commune were sufficiently violent to lend some color to the reports. An investigation shows that the rumors are in part true and in part exaggerated. The fact is that since the outbreak of May 4, 1886, the Anarchists have been compelled to hide their heads and the persons whose leadership they had assumed, by some sort of means, have been and are still returning to the association of those whom they left a few years ago when the Anarchist agitation in this city commenced. When the international Working People's Association was organized in this city five or six years ago it drew its membership from the Socialistic Labor party, which, since that time until within a recent period, became almost an empty name. The massacre on the Haymarket brought about a change. The "group" dispersed and the International disappeared. Recently, the Socialistic Labor party has been reorganizing and is once more quite a numerous body of men. The disintegrating influence of the Anarchists has made them an object of universal dislike among the Socialists who constituted the Socialist Labor party and the International in the early part of its existence. Of late, however, there has been an attempt made to rally the scattered members of that force that were scattered by the Haymarket riot and the execution of the leaders. The men who belonged to the groups at that time were for the most part not Anarchists. At all events, if they were they were

CURED OF THEIR FOLLY.

They do not want to admit their mistake by joining the Socialistic Labor party, which they once disrupted. But they want to reorganize and have hit upon a plan that has been worked out of the difficulty. There have been organized within the past two months a number of societies in different parts of the city called either debating societies or Working People's Educational Societies, or some similar name. These societies are devoted to the discussion of economic and social questions. The lectures and discussions are entirely Socialistic, or at least extremely radical. The object of reorganizing the members of the dispersed groups of the International in debating societies is explained by prominent Socialists as an additional step towards bringing them back to the Socialistic Labor party, and driving the fiends of dynamite and poison out of their heads. Even the name of Anarchists is avoided by those who used to glory in it, except a few who still believe in dynamite. The few extremists, although still able to create a deal of infectious enthusiasm by speeches such as were made at the Commune celebration, are not regarded with favor by the leaders in the new movement, who say such talk and actions spoil their work and retard the advancement of their cause. One of the most powerful causes that broke up Anarchism in this city is the political labor move, which developed considerable strength at some of the late elections. It is a remarkable feature of this movement that some of the most industrious workers for the party are those who formerly were the most rabid Anarchists."

Rich new pieces for Bridal Gifts.

Forty Years Ago.

From the Boston Herald.

The furniture, city houses especially, often costly enough, was almost without exception dreadful. The carpets of enormous patterns and discordant colors and the furniture of excessively varnished rosewood, of some like material and always in "sets," were things to shudder at. The costumes of the women were in keeping with the houses. Not only did the ladies wear long trousers of some white material that came so low that it was impossible for the wearers to walk without getting them in dust or mire, but the small girl-child was rigged out in the same preposterous garments, it being taught highly immoral for a tot of 6 to expose her ankles.

The ladies' boots, made usually of cloth, were heelless, laced at the side and came not quite to the ankle bone, while the one-button gloved left the wrist entirely bare. The wearer the female forehead reached to the back of the head the loveller, many even shaving the central portion to enhance their "beauty." Any hair that was golden or yellow was thought almost a deformity and a girl with sunny tresses was looked upon as hideous, was taunted as a "red-head" and generally used a lead comb or some wash to make her golden tresses conform as nearly as possible to the prevailing standard. All women plastered their hair in a hard, flat mass tight to the skull with bandoline or some other mucilaginous substance, as low down as the ears and then had it twisted in stiff, wire-like spirals or puffed out like blinders.

Lee Gong at the Bar.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Lee Gong is an illiterate Chinese, but he worthily upholds the traditions of his race. He was before Judge Hornblower yesterday, charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

"What's your plea, Gong?" asked the clerk.

"Me got five dolls, no mole," answered the Mongol, at the same time holding out the money in his hand.

"No, no, John, this is not a $5 court; proceed with the case," said the Court.

An officer took the stand and said that he suspected the Chinese had a weapon in his possession and he went to take it away from him, but the man ran away. The officer followed and arrested him, but found nothing on him. He afterward found the weapon among the blankets on Gong's bed.

At this point Lee Gong became somewhat excited, advanced to the bench and held up his hands and cried: "No guilty; me no savvee."

"What! You plead not guilty after offering me $5. This is disgraceful, sir. You had better take care and not fool me," said the Judge very sternly.

"The pistol was not found concealed on his person, Your Honor," said the prosecuting Attorney, "and if he pleads not guilty we have nothing else to do but let him go and lose the $5."

This was what was ultimately done; the door was opened and Lee Gong departed with just a faint smile on his placid countenance.

AMONG THE BROKERS.

The Bears on Top—Stocks Sold and Prices Obtained To-Day.

The market was dull to-day, the only noted feature being the sharp decline of several stocks.

Small Hopes was persistently and successfully raided. Opening with a sale of 200 shares at $1.40, the stock declined to $1.37½, 400 shares being disposed of; 200 sold for $1.35, after which the price rapidly declined to $1.20, 300 shares bringing this figure. The closing price was $1.15 bid. It was rumored on the street that work in the mine had been shut down. Col. J. O. Churchill stated that instructions had been telegraphed Superindent Donaldson to largely reduce expenses, and if necessary for reorganization of the working force, to temporarily suspend work. Mr. Donaldson may have stopped the mine in obedience to this telegram, but the officers of the company in this city had received no news to that effect. Any suspension of work would be only temporary. A mill return has just been received showing a product of $2,500 for the last run.

Pat Murphy opened with a sale of 500 shares at 57½, dropping to 56½ and closing at 55, 200 shares being disposed of at each figure.

Pilot, which opened at 20 bid, fell rapidly, the first sale being made at 15, 500 shares changing hands. It subsequently dropped to 12½, at which 1,000 shares were sold, and closed at 10 bid.

Concepcion also suffered a great shrinkage in value. Opening with offers at 15, it dropped to 7½, at which 800 shares were sold.

* * *

Five hundred shares of West Granite brought 48¾, 1,500 47½, and a small amount was sold at 46¾.

Rena opened at 17½, 300 shares changing hands, rose to 18¾, at which a sale of 200 shares was made, and with sales aggregating several hundred shares at 17½. A sale of 1,000 shares, seller 30, was made at 15, and a similar sale at 13½.

Golden Era was firm at $1.13½ bid, $1.15 asked, the sales aggregating but 300 shares. Black Oak was equally firm, 1,500 shares bringing 46¼. Golden Chicken was 35 bid, Queen of the West was offered at 10; no sale. Anderson was $1.25 bid, $1.27½ asked. Phillips was quoted at 28¾. Silver Age was offered at 21¾; 4 was bid for Grey Eagle. Jumbo was 30 bid. Cleveland was offered at 4.

Frisco was 72½ bid, 80 asked. The weekly report was received to-day, stating that the shaft was down 886 feet, and the east 200 foot level in 280 feet.

The Vice-President of the Golden Chicken states that Superintendent Gunnan has left for the mine, and will start the mill as soon as the roads are passable. So great, however, is the inconvenience arising from the rapidly melting snow, that the mill may not be able to start before May 1.

A telegram to the Secretary of the Chief Deposit Mining Company this morning says that the ore in the breast of the tunnel gives 473 ounces of silver per ton.

* * *

A meeting of the stockholders of the recently purchased Ontario-Elephant group of mines was held last night at the Lindell Hotel. It was determined to change the name of the mines, and the company will be incorporated under the name of the Wire Patch Gold Mining & Milling Company. It was reported that the subscriptions were nearly all in, and that everything was in a most flourishing condition. A meeting will be held at the Third National Bank at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of electing officers.

Wagon-Makers' Strike Denied.

The report that the wagon-makers of the city are dissatisfied with the wages paid them and will shortly go out on a strike is emphatically denied. It is stated that the rumor is wholly without foundation, and that the wagon-makers have no cause of grievance of so serious a nature as to lead to a rupture between employers and employed.

Prohibition Congressional Candidate.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 23.—A special to the Evening Times from Harrodsburg, Ky., says: "The Prohibitionists of this, the Eighth Congressional District, have nominated the Hon. Green Clay Smith for Congress, to run against the present incumbent, Hon. James B. McCreary.

If there is a "grease spot" on your clothes, stop at the grocer's on your way home and get a cake of Ivory Soap. Apply it to the spot with a piece of flannel, wet with hot water; rub well, then wet a clean place on the flannel and rub again to remove the soap. If the spot is of long standing, use a nail brush. Ivory Soap may be safely used upon any cloth, for it will not impair its strength or change the color.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'"; they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

The indications for twenty-four hours, commencing at 3 p. m. to-day, for Missouri are: Fresh to brisk southerly winds; warmer, fair weather.

KANSAS CITY has succeeded in having its boom shrunk 50 per cent. It takes a healthy boom to face the County Assessor.

OUR new Minister to Mexico has passed safely through the banquet ordeal, and the relations of the two republics are friendly.

IF a Democratic Congress does not succeed in passing a tariff-reduction bill the proceedings of the St. Louis Convention will be comparatively unimportant.

ARKANSAW'S convict camps are probably no worse than others. Any convict camp is bound to become a hotbed of horrors and a disgrace to the State that tolerates it.

THE promptness of the State Board of Equalization in equalizing the Kansas City assessment is in striking contrast with its slowness in equalizing the railroad assessments of the State.

THE House Judiciary Committee has finally agreed to increase the pay of the United States District Judges. This tardy recognition is better than nothing, but the increase is altogether insufficient.

THE contrast between the earnings of the Missouri Pacific and the quotations of the stock shows that it is easier for JAY GOULD to earn dividends than it is to get the public to invest in his enterprises.

WHEN Mayor HEWITT objected to "the wearing of the green," so far as the City Hall was concerned, on St. Patrick's Day, he had but three or four fresh rows on his hands and was just honing for another. He would not have taken anything for that opportunity to tread on St. Patrick's coat-tail.

SOME of the more prominent Republicans of St. Louis have organized a Republican Club which starts out under good conditions. Almost any organization ought to be able to defeat the soup-house combination which is trying to pass itself off on a disgusted public as the local Democratic party.

THE proceedings before the State Board of Equalization illustrate again the necessity for economy in running the city government of St. Louis. It is the drain of our city appropriations which keeps the assessment of the city at so high a notch. By the way, has the present city government done anything in the way of lessening the financial difficulties of the city?

THE assessment of 1886 rated Kansas City town lots at an average value of $576, and the County Assessor thought that two years of unprecedented town-lot booming should have doubled the value at least. But the State Board of Equalization fixes the valuation for this year at $612.45—an increase in two years of only 8 per cent per annum!

Of the five State officers composing the State Board of Equalization, Auditor WALKER is the only one who is not a candidate. When Boss CORRIGAN, who usually turns up at the head of Jackson County's Democratic delegations in nominating conventions, appeared before this board of candidates and demanded a reduction of $41,500,000 in Kansas City's real estate assessment and of nearly [illegible] County's, he got it, four candidates who dared to vote with Auditor WALKER against the reduction. A reduction of eighty or one hundred millions was not asked for and obtained because Jackson County's real estate operators were afraid it would throw a damper on speculation.

WE accept without question the Globe-Democrat's statement that it "never undertook to keep Mr. GLOVER out of Congress." We were under the impression that it tried to secure the assistance of a gentleman named DYER in keeping him out of Congress, but we may have been mistaken. As for Mr. GLOVER'S race for Governor being "a joke, and no more," we do not observe any of his competitors indulging in boisterous merriment over the joke.

IT was easy to convince the State Board of Equalization that the alleged transactions which had guided the Jackson County Assessor were bogus and that he had put twice the actual value on Kansas City real estate, although he tried to keep far enough below the quoted prices of the real estate market. But there was no getting around his assessment of personal property at $12,725,750. There were recorded mortgages to show for that.

KANSAS CITY'S town-lot boom seems to have had a remarkable effect in reducing the value of real estate other than town lots in Jackson County. The County Assessor and the State Board of Equalization assessed such real estate in 1886 at an average valuation of $80.51 per acre. The County Assessor this year felt justified in raising it to $83.12 per acre, but the State Board has reduced it to $82.34 per acre, having been easily convinced that two years of Kansas City's booming has lowered the value that much!

THE unanimous report of the House Committee on Revision of the Laws in favor of amending the Constitution so as to provide for the election of Senators by the people is the first fruit of popular disgust with the system which puts so many railroad attorneys and millionaires in the Senate to represent there the money kings and the corporations rather than the States or the people. Senators elected directly by the people would be less apt to occupy purchased seats and wear a corporation collar, than Senators elected as STANFORD was, by undisguised purchase, if not by technical bribery.

PROF. ELISHA GRAY announces that he has perfected an invention called the telautograph, an electric instrument by which a reporter can, from any distance within 500 miles, reproduce instantly in the office of his journal an exact fac-simile of anything he writes or sketches with a pencil at the other end of the line. It is designed to supersede the telephone, or at least take its place more conveniently for a great many uses. But the public need not jump at the conclusion that it promises them cheaper communication. The Bell telephone monopoly will either get control of it or form a combination with its owners so as to keep rates as high as the law allows or the traffic will bear.

Poor Tom!

From the New York WORLD.

No death that has occurred in New York in years has been more pathetic than that of the blind newsdealer, Tom Donohue, which occurred last Saturday night—self-inflicted though it was. A good, honest workman, he lost his eyes nearly twenty years ago. To keep soul and body together he sold newspapers at a little stand at the corner of Fourth avenue and Thirty-second street. He could tell his newspapers by the feel, and the skill with which he made change was a marvel. When he felt sufficiently prosperous he wooed and won a girl who had been blind from birth. In their affliction they were happy and as contented, perhaps, as most people. A month ago the wife fell ill and was sent to the hospital. Blind Tom struggled on. He had saved about $200, which he hid in the stove-pipe in his room in Fourth avenue. Last week the blizzard worried and depressed him. Then somebody built a fire in his room when he was absent and the fortune in the stove-pipe vanished. Poor Tom, lonely, discouraged and aweary, took the strap which had so often served him in carrying his newspapers, tied it about his neck and suspending himself to a transom passed out into the darkness beyond the land of sorrow. A stricken wife and a poor little dog which used to lead him back and forth from his news-stand are disconsolate. Poor Tom!

Thackeray's Stepfather.

From an Exchange.

In the new Church of the Holy Trinity at Ayr, Scotland, is a brass mural tablet given by Mrs. Ritchie, the daughter of Thackeray. It is a memorial not only of her father's stepfather, but also of "Colonel Newcome." The following is the inscription which she has written for it:

Sacred to the memory of
MAJOR HENRY WILLIAM CARMICHAEL SMYTH,
of the Bengal Engineers,
Who departed this life at Ayr, 9th September, 1861,
Aged 81 years.
"Adsum."

"And lo, he whose heart was as that of a little child had answered to his name and stood in the presence of the Master."—Newcomes, vol. iii., chap. 26.

On the rebuilding of the church his grave was brought within the walls. He was laid to rest immediately beneath this place by his stepson, William Makepeace Thackeray.

A Calm Boston View of Ingalls.

From the Boston Herald.

But the meanest feature of the whole is to inquire into the politics of any man who risked his life and shed his blood for his country, and to measure his patriotism by it. We say calmly, and with as little conscious disposition to exaggerate as in any line we have ever written, that it is difficult to conceive of a more infamous assault than that of Senator Ingalls upon the memory of Gen. Hancock. It would seem to be only necessary to refer to the history of our country to cause any right-minded man to agree with us. There should be no difference of opinion on such a point. Nothing but insignificance would shelter a cross-road stump-speaker or a seven-by-nine front-[illegible] an attack of this character. Made by one of the highest officers under the Government, it should not pass without a rebuke to make the most brazen defamer quail and compel an apology to an insulted public at his hands.

Women and Night Travel.

From the Boston Herald.

We find the singular statement made that very few women are now found traveling in sleeping-cars. It will be a surprise, we imagine, to the ordinary traveler. If the statement had been that few women enjoy that kind of travel, it would have been nearer the truth, and, indeed, in more respects than one the comfort of the fairer sex is not so well cared for on the sleeping-car as that of the other. A Western railroad man suggests that women be employed as conductors on these cars. We doubt if much would be gained in this way, if it were practicable. What is most needed is privacy, and the new system of Mann boudoir cars comes nearer to affording this than the Pullman. By and by the railroads may provide a car exclusively for women, and then a woman conductor will be in order. We do not see why it should not be reasonable to afford such a car on the longer routes now.

In a Hole.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Ingalls is in a hole, as the phrase goes, and explanations will not extricate him. Turn which way he will he can do nothing but prove himself to have been, in this matter, nothing but a fool or fanatic, a sorrowful plight for so "smart" a man. May all the Bourbons share his fate.

SPANISH JUSTICE.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN'S DISASTROUS EXPERIENCE IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Mr. Thos. T. Collins Invests His Small Fortune in the Lumber Trade at Manila—The Entire Business Seized by a Priest and a Sea Captain—Unsuccessful Efforts to Secure Justice—The Robbers Aided and Protected by Spanish Officials—The Victim Held an Unwilling Captive—Complaint to the State Department.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Thos. T. Collins, of Manila, has been wrestling with Spanish justice for the past fifteen years, and becoming disgusted with the delays and red tape that seem to be the chief features of Spanish law in that far off country, has now applied for redress to Mr. H. W. Leonard of No. 128 Broadway, and between Mr. Leonard and the State Department he hopes to squeeze the Spanish Treasury to the tune of some $100,000 for wrongs he says have been done him in that Government. Manila is a large town of one of the Philipine Islands and is one of the provinces of Spain in that part of the world. Mr. Collins is a New Yorker and endeavored to embark in a business enterprise at Manila, furnishing some $25,000 of capital and sundry items of stock, all of which, he claims, were gobbled up by the Spanish authorities and he himself, after years of toil and labor, left absolutely destitute and finally imprisoned. The priests of the island seem to have been the stumbling blocks in the way to Mr. Collins' success, Mr. Collins claiming that a hierarchy over which the Government has no control renders it impossible for a foreigner, and particularly an American, to obtain any sort of legal redress for wrongs or recognition in the matter of personal or property rights. The United States Consul at Manila has taken up the cause of Mr. Collins, and some correspondence has passed between the State Department and the United States Minister at Madrid relative to the matter, the Spanish Government having promised to investigate it.

MR. COLLINS' LETTER.

The following letter, received by Mr. Leonard from Mr. Collins, explains the latter's grievances:

"In 1871 I joined Mr. William Morton Clark of Philadelphia, who had a large timber business op the Island of Luzon, and started cutting some timber contracted for by the Chinese Government. I soon discovered that I was interfering with the business of a certain priest who was also in the same line of business. Shortly before this, this priest and an inspector of roads had loaded the Spanish bark Santa Lucia for Hong Kong and had made things so disagreeable for others who had tried to ship merchandise that foreigners were becoming afraid to risk their capital. Mr. Clark, finding how things were going on, soon abandoned the enterprise and I then determined to fight the thing out on my account. At this time I had 25,000 cubic feet of hard timber, cut and squared, for a foreign market, eighty-two buffalo for hauling and a plant of machinery and appliances valued at $7,000. I had a license for carrying on my business duly granted by the Superior Government, and in 1874 chartered a vessel at Manila to carry my timber to Hong Kong, and then went to the Port of Love, where my timber was, taking with me $940 in gold to prepare for the vessel's arrival and to commence cutting.

A BOLD SEIZURE.

"Upon arriving at Love I found that during my absence at Manila, a portion of my timber had been forcibly taken possession of and had been shipped on board the Spanish bark Teresa by Joaquin Barcello, the captain of the Teresa, who was then on his way to Hong Kong. I also learned that my buffaloes, stock and rice had been removed, and that Juan Gaal, my foreman, whom I had left in charge of my property, was all subject to the orders of this Barcello, and that my choppers had been bribed into the service of Padre Fidel Moreno, the priest of the town. When I complained of this I was confronted with a document signed by the Adelantado of Love to the effect that no notice should be taken of my complaints, to give no testimony in my behalf (thereby shutting me out of my legal rights), and that my foreman, Juan Gaal, should look after the interests of Capt. Barcello until the Captain's return from China. I then applied to the Governor, protesting against the robbery of my timber and the appropriation of my property by Capt. Barcello and Juan Gaal, but was merely told that the commandant had so ordered, and that there would be no interference.

MORE MISFORTUNE.

"Seeing there was no justice to be had at home, I sought to regain my rights at Manila, and so left the next morning for Manila on the bark Industria, taking with me all my private papers, contracts, etc. The night we encountered a terrible typhoon, in which the vessel was wrecked, and all that I was able to save was the clothes I then wore. Upon my arrival at Manila I put in a complaint against Capt. Barcello, and also against Padre Moreno and the Commandante of the District, as accomplices in the above fraud and robbery. The case dragged along, as is customary in Spanish countries, and about a year later my funds were all exhausted. At this time a Spanish friend at Manila, acquainted with my misfortunes, took me to his home and loaned me some money, shortly afterward sailing for Europe. With this money I returned to Love, expecting to find at least a portion of my timber left, which I intended to ship. Arriving at Love, I found that Capt. Barcello had been there before me and had seized and shipped everything but a few worm-eaten logs. Barcello had even hauled the timber I had out in the mountains, and, aided by his accomplices, had cleaned me out entirely during my absence. I saw it was no use to complain further, and so I set to work to cut some more timber, and after much trouble and expense got two cargoes ready and left for Manila, intending to go from there to Hong Kong to sell what I had last cut. Learning that Barcello was in Manila and was about to leave for Hong Kong, I applied to the Alcalde, Senor Torranco, who had my suit in charge, to stop Barcello from leaving the country, as my case against him had not yet been decided. This did not benefit me much, as the Alcalde would not grant, my request, and although a case of robbery and fraud was pending against him, Barcello was allowed to leave without hindrance. I then applied for my passport, but to my surprise this was refused me on the ground that my suit should first be decided. I then returned to Love, having authorized Chas. Germain to charter for me, and in due time I had dispatched three cargoes to Hong Kong, but finding that my presence in Hong Kong would be absolutely necessary for the success of my business I applied a second time for my passport and was again refused.

A VIRTUAL PRISONER.

"Thinking that if I offered security I would be allowed to leave the town, I named a friend who was willing to go on my bond, but the Alcalde shut me off from this chance by sending his clerk to my friend's house and succeeded in so frightening him that my friend withdrew his name as my bondsman. I know that this act was done deliberately, as at this time and during the whole of my suit, the Alcalde was on the most intimate terms with Capt. Barcello. My first step was to protest against Senor Torranco trying or hearing my case, as I showed conclusively that he was hand and glove with Barcello. This had the desired effect and the case was transferred to another Alcalde. Torranco had, however, served his friend well; he had stopped my passport at a vital point in my business on a frivolous pretext. I was a foreigner, and that was enough, not being able to obtain permission to leave the country, all my efforts being frustrated by those in power, although I was the aggrieved and injured party. I was held a captive in Manila, my business meantime going to ruin abroad. This state of affairs continued for months, with no signs of any beneficial change in my circumstances, and so I finally brought the matter officially before the American Consul, who wrote to the Captain-General, stating my case in full, and advised me to abandon my suit, which I did, the Consul officially notifying the Captain-General of the fact. From that day to this I have been sustained by my friends. My means were exhausted, and I was compelled to leave the hotel a beggar on the streets, with my resources all gone and heavy debts pressing upon me.

"The Government of these islands has become a by-word among all civilized people. Hearing that a special commission has been appointed by the Government of the United States to visit places and ports in this part of the world to investigate and examine into abuses and grievances similar to those herein stated committed on American commerce or American citizens, I have written this for the purpose of calling attention to the same, that I may thereby have restored to me that of which I have been robbed and which was due to the criminal neglect of both national and treaty obligations."

Mr. Collins seems to have been pretty roughly handled since he has put his affairs into the hands of the American Consul. He states: "These bandits, about ten of them, on the 13th of October last entered my room and beat me unmercifully with the butts of their muskets, laying me up for two months, and I may consider myself fortunate if I am not assassinated."

Mr. Leonard intends soon going to Washington in the interest of his client and to push the matter. He has already been notified by Secretary of State Bayard that the Spanish authorities are looking into his claim. Mr. Collins thinks that about $100,000 will be the proper figure at which to assess the damage he has sustained, and which sum he hopes will be forthcoming when "Uncle Sam" takes the matter thoroughly in hand.

A COOKED-UP STORY.

George Gould Denies the Reports Concerning the Missouri Pacific.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 23.—The News-Herald of this city yesterday contained an interview with George Gould in relation to the stories published in the New York Times of Tuesday regarding the Missouri Pacific.

"I want to make some inquiries," said the interviewer, "concerning Missouri Pacific matters and your connection with them. I suppose you have seen the latest New York papers?"

"Yes, I have seen the papers," replied the young financier, "but I don't understand to what you refer exactly."

The News-Herald man then pulled the clipping from his pocket and passed it to Mr. Gould. As he read it he took his pencil from his pocket and occasionally scribbled on the margin. When he had finished he handed the slip back and said: "This is all a cooked up story. There is no truth in it—at least not in those portions which relate to me personally. In the first place, I have not seen the annual report of the Missouri Pacific and don't know what it will show; and, again, there has been no disagreement relative to the declaration of the dividend. The whole thing is newspaper bosh."

"Do you mean to say, Mr. Gould," said the News-Herald reporter, "that there is absolutely no truth in the Times article?"

"Well," replied Mr. Gould, "there is so little truth that it would be mighty hard to find it in all that stuff I have just read."

"Is it not true that the Missouri Pacific shows a falling off of several million dollars in its last year's business?"

"Oh, I don't know about that. As I told you before I have not yet seen the report."

"As a matter of fact, are you opposed to declaring a 7 per cent dividend?"

NO DIVIDEND UNLESS EARNED.

Mr. Gould looked thoughtful for a moment and finally said: "Of one thing you may rest assured, that the Missouri Pacific will not declare a dividend, no matter how small, unless the road has earned it. We don't make dividends on hired money. That is opposed to our policy. One thing more I can say, in view of the serious strike now in force on the C., B. & Q. and Omaha lines, and threatened extension to all the Western and Southwestern system, the Missouri Pacific directors may consider it a sound business policy to withhold a dividend at present in order to provide against the great losses which a general strike would entail. At any rate this question will come up at the next meeting of the Board."

In reply to the inquiry whether he himself was a member of the Missouri Pacific Board of Directors, Mr. Gould said: "I think that the meeting referred to would be held to-day (Thursday)." He took the printed slip from the News-Herald man's hands again and looked very much amused when he came to the allegation that he (George) had a partner in the person of "Eddie" in a scheme for going short of his father's stock.

Again taking his pencil from his pocket he wrote upon the margin opposite it, "all bosh; a big fake," and then handed it back to his visitor with the remark: "That stuff is way off. There is not the slightest truth in it. It is the worst kind of a fake. I don't know anything about it; never heard of it before."

IT DIDN'T WORK.

The Brazen Attempt to Bribe a Philadelphia City Official.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 23.—Gen. Louis Wagner, Director of the Department of Public Works of Philadelphia, received a letter Wednesday from Martin D. Van Buren, C. E. of the Oliphant Company, No. 93 Liberty street, New York. The letter asks Gen. Wagner to examine into the merits of the Oliphant cold water filters and feed water heaters. At the end of the letter came the following unique postscript:

PERSONAL NOTE—3—20—88.

I would personally urge that you give this matter all the attention you possibly can, as you know will its adoption means a contract involving an expenditure of a large sum of money, and contracts for large amounts always pay large commissions; and it is needless to add to whom these commissions are paid and consequent interest, thereon.

Gen. Wagner very promptly replied in the following scathing manner:

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
PHILADELPHIA, March 22, 1888.

Martin Van Buren, Esq., No. 93 Liberty street, New York:

DEAR SIR—Yours of the 20th inst. received. Without the unsigned appended note, which reads as follows (here the personal note is quoted in full), your suggestions to examine into the merits of the Oliphant filter would have had prompt attention. With the note I will say that no Oliphant filter will be introduced into the Water-works of the City of Philadelphia while I hold the office of Director of the Department of Public Works. Commissions for the introduction of this filter may be paid elsewhere, but you will not have an opportunity to pay any to Philadelphia city officials during the next five years.

Yours truly, LOUIS WAGNER, Director.

This reply is rather a "sockdollager" for the Oliphant Company. Martin D. Van Buren, who is engineer for the Oliphant Company, was seen last night at his residence, No. 6, Horatio street by a Herald reporter. When questioned about the matter he admitted at once that he had written such a letter as above to Gen. Louis Wagner, and stated that he did so by order of Mr. Oliphant, Secretary of the Company. As yet he had received no reply. Mr. Van Buren, who is a young man, was positive that no such thing as bribery was intended or even thought of. He looked upon the matter simply as a piece of business, and referred the reporter for further information to Mr. Oliphant. This gentleman resides in New Jersey and could not be found last night.

George B. Ryerson of Chicago Finds His Only Child.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 23.—After a separation of half a century George B. Ryerson and his only child were reunited to-day. During all these years both believed the other dead. It is a strange story. Mr. Ryerson was a brother of millionaire Martin Ryerson, an old settler in Chicago, who died last year. Fifty years ago he left his wife and daughter in Paterson, N. J., and went to Florida, enlisting as a soldier in the Seminole war. He was wounded, and for many months he was at the point of death. Without friends or money it was a long time before he reached home. Then he learned that his wife, believing him dead, had moved away. No one could tell where she had gone. After a long, fruitless search, Mr. Ryerson went to Mexico, remaining there many years. He accumulated considerable property, and then moved to California, where he lived until his brother Martin discovered him six years ago and induced him to come to Chicago. Recently Mr. Ryerson succeeded in tracing his only child. She is a Mrs. Schurter and she resides in Newburgh, N. Y. In response to a telegram she came to Chicago, arriving late last night. Her mother died long ago, and until last week she had not the faintest suspicion that her father was alive. Mr. Ryerson, although 83 years of age, is hale and hearty. He is living with relatives.

A FAKE.

THE ALLEGED INTERVIEW WITH SPEAKER CARLISLE IN AN EASTERN PAPER.

The Philadelphia Times' Misrepresentation of Mr. Carlisle's Attitude on the Tariff—A Sensation Among Members of Congress—The Speaker's Emphatic Denial of the Published Interview.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.—The sensation of the day at the national capital was the publication in Wednesday's Philadelphia Times, a Democratic journal, of what professed to be an interview with Speaker Carlisle on the tariff business, and in particular the Mills bill. The newspapers from a distance are not generally read by Congressmen until the evening of the day they are received, and it was not until the House assembled yesterday morning that the sentiments imputed by the Philadelphia Times to Mr. Carlisle began to be discussed. Members wondered and were "amazed," until by and by it occurred to some one to ask the Speaker about his strange opinions, when it was discovered that he had said nothing of that which was printed as his. To the POST-DISPATCH correspondent the Speaker said last evening:

"I have spoken about the tariff business, of course, with many people. Everybody is speaking about it, but I have not been interviewed on that question or on the Mills bill by any one, and the Times report is absolutely false."

"Have you said to any one in conversation what is imputed to you in regard to sugar or wool?" the correspondent asked.

"Not a word bearing any such meaning or construction. It absolutely misrepresents my opinions, and imputes to me what I have neither said nor thought," was the Speaker's reply.

THE INTERVIEW.

The following is the reported "interview" in the Philadelphia Times: In a very frank conversation upon the result of his inquiries the Speaker said:

"I am free to admit that I am not as confident as I could wish that the Mills bill for revenue reduction will pass in its original shape, but I am assured that some tariff reduction measure will go on the statute books before this session of Congress adjourns. The character of the measure which will pass I cannot foreshadow, except that it will be somewhere in the line of the committee bill. The difficulty, from what I learn, grows out of the conflicting claims and interests of whisky, wool, salt and lumber. Some want whisky and tobacco to carry the bulk of revenue reductions; others insist on sugar and tobacco, and so on, as the interests of constituencies are affected. These conflicting interests, I think, will be adjusted.

"Then the next controversy comes on wool. I have my doubts whether wool will be continued on the free list. That seems to be the stumbling block in the way of many Democrats. I have never been particularly determined about wool. There are strong arguments for and against placing it on the free list. In my opinion it might be reported as it now stands in the bill and settled by the House. There is a strong opposition among the farmers to free wool. The bill may be moulded in this particular."

RANDALL'S BILL.

Alluding to the Randall bill, the Speaker said: "With one material exception, it is a well-framed measure. If he had omitted whisky and inserted sugar, it would have stood a fair chance of securing considerable Democratic support. I do not believe that it is policy just yet to interfere with the tax on whisky. I am decidedly in favor of taking the duty off sugar, as it would not affect any section of the country except Louisiana. Besides, it is one of those infant industries about which the people care very little. Nor do I favor the policy of paying the sugar growers a bounty as an offset to the repeal of the duty. I do not think that the people of the country would favor being taxed in order that an industry like the sugar industry of Louisiana might be protected. The bounty

"PIGGY" NORTON.

THE SENSATIONAL STORY TOLD BY A NOTORIOUS BROOKLYN BURGLAR.

Startling Sequel to the Great Port Jervis Burglary—Norton Charges Dr. Wickham, Whose House He Robbed, With Conspiring to Defraud an Insurance Company—The Doctor Exposed as an Ex-Convict.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Some time ago the Sun printed the story of the arrest in Brooklyn of a notorious burglar known as "Piggy" Norton, or North, who had been found in the same house with a quantity of furniture and other goods stolen from the residence of Dr. D. B. Wickham, at Port Jervis. Dr. Wickham had gone to Florida early in the winter, leaving the house untenanted. It was found by Port Jervis people stripped of its most valuable contents and with a quantity of gunpowder arranged as though it had been the purpose of the thieves to fire the house after robbing it. The stolen goods had been shipped in small packages, at different times, from Port Jervis to Brooklyn by express, and this fact made it possible to trace them. Norton was taken to Port Jervis and held until last Tuesday, when, the Grand Jury failing to find evidence enough to indict him, he was discharged and at once rearrested by detectives from Brooklyn, pawn-tickets found upon him having led to evidence connecting him with two burglaries in Brooklyn. He was brought back to Brooklyn and yesterday the Grand Jury found two indictments against him. He will be arraigned to-day to plead.

A SENSATIONAL STORY.

Meantime he has told a sensational story which makes Dr. Wickham a conspirator with him to rob and burn the Port Jervis house to defraud the insurance companies. He has produced no corroborative evidence except the fact that Dr. Wickham, although now a wealthy and respected citizen of Port Jervis, is an ex-convict. The story of the doctor's life is an interesting one. In 1859 David B. Wickham was a rising young physician in Sussex County, N. J. His father, Samuel Wickham, was a wealthy Sussex County farmer. Solomon Cole, a well-to-do farmer of Montague Township, and Dr. Wickham were warm personal friends. Cole was a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families in that part of New Jersey. In the spring of 1858 Miss Helena T. Quick of Milford, Pike Co., Pa., just across the Delaware from Montague Township, went to Montague to teach school. She was a highly accomplished and attractive young woman of an old and prominent family. The Quicks having settled in Pike County while the Indians still occupied the valley. Solomon Cole met Miss Quick, professed great love for her and they were soon married. Soon after the marriage Mrs. Cole's health became poor and on several occasions her husband took her to Dr. Wickham for treatment. Cole had once or twice suggested to his wife that she should have her life insured and on one of her visits to Dr. Wickham he made the same suggestion. She at last consented to take out an insurance policy for $4,000 in favor of her husband who, it afterwards was alleged, had made an agreement with Dr. Wickham that the latter was to receive one-half of the insurance on the death of Mrs. Cole.

POISONED.

In the latter part of February, 1859, Mrs. Cole was indisposed, and Dr. Wickham was called. He treated her, but she continued to grow worse until the 20th of March, when she died. The circumstances attending her death aroused suspicions and the New York Insurance Company that had issued the policy on Mrs. Cole's life investigated the case. Mrs. Cole's remains were exhumed in May, 1859, and her stomach was sent to New York for chemical analysis. Undoubted evidence was discovered of both arsenic and strychnine, and on the chemist's report warrants were issued for the arrest of both Cole and Dr. Wickham on the charge of murdering her. Dr. Wickham fled the State, but Cole was arrested and placed in Newton jail. Both men were indicted—Dr. Wickham as the principal and Cole as his accomplice. The indictment charged that Wickham administered arsenic to Mrs. Cole on the day he was called to see her, and on every day that he called thereafter until the 20th of March, on which day he gave her twenty grains of strychnia, which caused her death the same day.

Cole was placed on trial in October, 1859, at Newton, before Judge Whelpley. Among his counsel was the Hon. Andrew J. Rogers, at present one of the civil justices of New York City. While the circumstances all pointed to the guilt of the prisoner, it could not be positively established and he was acquitted. Dr. Wickham remained in hiding until August, 1860, when it was learned that he was in New York City. He was arrested as he was entering the office of Lawyer Chauncey Shaffer, taken back to Newton and lodged in jail. He was tried at the September term of the Sussex County Court and convicted of murder in the second degree, a verdict hard to understand, in view of the evident premeditation of the crime. He was sentenced to fifteen years in the New Jersey State prison, which time he served, and on his release went to Fort Jervis, a few miles from the scene of the murder, and resumed the practice of his profession. His apparent manliness and robust honesty conquered the community and in less than three months after he had become a resident of the place, those who were the loudest in his condemnation fifteen years before, became his warmest defenders, and declared their belief that he was innocent of all knowledge of the Cole murder.

Advices from Port Jervis last night declare that the confidence there in Dr. Wickham's integrity is not shaken in the least by Burglar Norton's story. Norton first made charges, it is said, upon his arrest there, and they were denied by the doctor. Dr. Wickham could easily have sold his furniture, it is said, for more than the insurance on it.

CHAT OF THE STAGE.

The Abbott Opera Company appear to advantage in light opera and Miss Abbott's voice is not so noticeably lacking in the flimsier score, so that last evening something of a success was scored in "The Carnival of Venice." The opera is very light and thin as to plot and libretto, but it is spirited and the music is melodious and catchy. The points of the opera for Miss Abbott were the carnival song and the Erminie lullaby which she interpolated. They were encored. Miss Bertram made a pleasing impression as Romilis, and excellent work was done by Messrs. Broderick, Pruette, Montegriffo, Micheiena, Walter Allen and Miss Annandale. To-night Miss Abbott will present another novelty which is said to be very melodious and attractive. It is "Ruy Blas; or, the Queen and the Lackey." To-morrow afternoon she will assume a boy's part in "The Good Devil," and to-morrow night the engagement will close with "Bohemian Girl."

The French Grand Opera Company presented the lovely opera, "Mignon," to an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. To-night one of the finest performances of the engagement is promised in the splendid opera, "Les Huguenots," with MM. Berger, Claverie, De Noye, de Sinkiey, Hervey and the entire strength of the company represented.

There is a movement on foot to secure a return of the French Grand Opera Company. The company during its present engagement has been laboring under many disadvantages, which have prevented its merits becoming as widely recognized as they should be. The merit of the company has been appreciated, however, by a number of gentlemen, and a circular was issued calling a meeting in the Directors' room of the Exposition this afternoon to arrange some plan by which the company be secured for a lengthy engagement next fall. After reciting the brilliant performances of the present company the circular proposes that a company direct from Paris shall occupy Music Hall for a month, giving at least twelve performances of either new operas or operas of accepted merit. Among the originators of the movement are S. M. Kennard, C. H. Sampson, E. Guendet, F. L. Ridgeley, Thos. M. Knapp, Jos. S. Fullerton, Thos. C. Doan, E. Smith, Gabriel Bonvier and T. L. Crawford. The meeting will take place at 4 o'clock, and all interested in music are invited to attend.

John W. McKinney, manager of Clara Morris, accompanied by his nephew, Master Harry P. Stone, passed through town yesterday on his way to Kansas City. Mr. McKinney just now occupies a peculiar position. He considers himself the manager of Miss Morris, and yet he has been discharged by her husband, Mr. Fred. Harriott. Under Mr. McKinney's management the emotional artiste enjoyed a wonderfully successful season and did not disappoint a single audience when she was under contract to play. She disappointed an audience here on Saturday night, but Mr. McKinney says that was his fault, as there was no contract for that performance and he telegraphed her not to play as she had some long trips and hard engagements ahead. The trouble with Mr. Harriott, Mr. McKinney says, was caused by the latter refusing to allow the former to break an engagement with Manager Dickson of Indianapolis. Mr. Harriott held Mr. Dickson on the string for a long time and after finally declaring that he would play with him, and when Mr. Dickson could not secure another attraction he wanted to break the engagement and Mr. McKinney would not allow it. Mr. McKinney says despite Mr. Harriott's action he will continue his work and if Harriott persists in his course he is prepared to sue for his part of the earnings of the season.

The managers of Miss Della Fox are determined that she shall have the best opportunities to develop her musical talents, and to that end will make arrangements to place her under the instructions of Mme. Marchesi in Paris during her stay in Europe. Mme. Marchesi is the most famous and successful vocal teacher in Paris, and Emma Nevada and many of the most brilliant singers of the operatic stage at present were her pupils. It will be interesting to hear her sing at the next Musical Union Concert and then hear her sing when she returns from Europe to discover the progress she will have made.

The engagement of Mr. John L. Stoddard at the Grand next week promises to be the most successful he has yet had here. His lectures selected for the course are among the most attractive and beautifully illustrated in his entire list.

LIFE AT THE CLUBS.

The Elks' Benefit Performance—A Brilliant Event After Lent—Club Notes.

The Lenten season has its effect upon club life in respect of daily attendance and social gatherings. March is the only dull month of the winter season at the club resorts. The single event of importance during the month was the annual meeting of the Mercantile Club. The prominent feature immediately after Lent will be the Elks' annual benefit performance which is announced for Thursday afternoon, April 5, at the Grand Opera-house. It is an occasion drawing out the full attendance of the Elk Club in this city and the members of the fraternity generally, while the rare theatrical programme furnished by the combined talent of the week affords a genuine treat for the general public. The leading members of the profession always generously contribute their services for the Elks' relief-fund benefit performance, and they take an especial pride and interest in appearing here from the fact that so many of the most distinguished actors of the times are members of the St. Louis lodge. A strong local interest likewise attaches to the performance this season, Manager and Mrs. John W. Norton (Emma Stockmeir) having consented to appear in the "Honeymoon," supported by a cast of Elks and a young lady well known in social circles. Theater-goers will be pleased to greet the St. Louis manager and his talented wife, who have not been seen upon the boards for several seasons. The Carleton Opera Company will contribute several numbers to the mammoth programme. Mr. Fred Warde, the tragedian, a member of the St. Louis lodge, will appear supported by his company. Mrs. D. P. Bowers has also consented to take part in the performance. The attractions of the week at all the leading theaters will be represented and the intervals will be filled with musical selections by choice local talent. There is already a great demand upon the members for tickets. Reserved seats can be obtained at the box office of the Grand Opera-house on and after Tuesday next.

CLUB NOTES.

The leap year party to be given to-morrow evening at the Germania Club promises to be one of the most brilliant gatherings of the season. The ladies are taking great pains to insure the success of the affair. They have entire charge of the arrangements.

To-morrow evening there will be a dramatic performance at the Liederkranz, followed by a hop. The entertainment will be largely attended.

The next entertainment at the Harmonie Club will be given on Saturday evening, March 31. The usual hop will follow.

The University Club will make arrangements for one more lecture before the close of the Lenten season. The grounds will soon be placed in order for outdoor attractions.

The illness of Seth W. Cobb, who is warmly interested in the South Side Club movement, has somewhat retarded the plans of the Committee on Organization. Several desirable houses in the vicinity of Lafayette Park have been inspected by the committee on location and a selection will be made shortly.

The Farm and Implement Association will have a banquet and meeting on Monday evening at the Mercantile Club. Covers will be laid for sixty gentlemen and an elaborate menu will be prepared for the occasion.

The new Board of Directors of the Mercantile Club meets every Tuesday to pass upon business requiring immediate attention. They are well satisfied with the general management of the club-house, and the attendance of members is well kept up daily. The quality of the noonday lunch sustains the reputation of the cuisine.

Judge Vaillant has granted the amendments to the articles of incorporation for the Marquette Club. The Directors propose to add several features of attraction to the club-house during the spring months. A gymnasium is strongly urged by the younger members.

Unification of Missouri Baptists—A Plan Arranged This Week—Charity Institutions to Be Represented at the Evangelical Alliance Monday—Visit of the International Secretary of the Railway Y. M. C. A.—The Jewish Passover—A Religious Editor Who Fears Bismarck Will Die Young—Church Notes.

A meeting that marks an epoch in the Baptist history in Missouri took place at Kansas City this week, where a strong committee assembled for the purpose of addressing the North and South Boards in regard to the divided condition of the Baptist denomination of this State, and to devise some means of unifying it. Besides the members of the committee who were appointed by the last Association, prominent clergymen and laymen were in attendance. The Baptists in Missouri differ from those of all other States, each of which is auxiliary to either the North or the South Boards, but not to both. Missouri, however, is auxiliary to both, and much friction is thereby caused by the agents of the Home and the Foreign Boards, who are very active rivals. It has long been considered unfortunate that the field has been so open that an agent of the Northern Boards could canvass a church, and be followed by a Southern agent. The committee at Kansas City decided on a programme and an address to the four Boards, two North and two South. The programme will be submitted to the Southern Convention at Richmond, and the Northern Convention at Washington, which both meet in May. The proposed plan of unification will let each person designate to which section his contribution shall go. Any plan of unification will greatly bless the ladies, who are considerably divided. In St. Louis there are two distinct ladies' missionary societies, one auxiliary to the Northern Board, the other to the Southern. It is believed that this unifying of Missour will do much to hasten an amalgamation of the two sections.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

The Evangelical Alliance will meet Monday in regular monthly session. The most important feature of the meeting will be the presentation of the work of the various charitable institutions of the city by representives of those organizations. About a dozen will send representatives. This programme is in lieu of an address to have been given by Rev. Dr. Nichols on "The History of Protestantism in St. Louis." The Alliance has started out so auspiciously under Rev. Dr. Merrill's presidency that he is determined to keep up the interest in the meetings.

THE COUNTY S. S. ASSOCIATION.

The St. Louis County Sunday School Association held its annual meeting at Kirkwood on the 18th inst. Reports from the President and missionary were read and printed. The attendance was a genuine surprise, no such crowds ever having previously been seen at St. Rose's. Father McGlynn, the rector, has charge of all the arrangements.

Rev. Dr. McBride, who will preach at St. Mark's Lutheran Church Sunday evening, is the Presbyterian preacher from Ireland who, at the Monday meeting of the Presbyterian pastors, caused some interest by his strong Tory speech on home rule. He has quite a reputation as an educator and is but recently from Ireland, the vicinity of Londonderry.

Rev. B. W. Johnson, editor of the Christian Evangelist, disciple organ, has a naive comment on European matters that will amuse the Personal Liberty League, which has been holding up the Iron Chancellor as something of a model, and Mr. Johnson says: "Bismarck is 73 years old, but uses too much brandy and beer to live many years longer."

The subject of Rabbi Sale's lecture Sunday morning at Shaare Emeth will be "Bible Miracles." To-morrow's discourse will be on "Priest and Prophet." In the Sunday discourse he will take advanced ground on the wonders described in the Old Testamnent. In to-morrow address he will show the difference between the priest and the prophet in Israel.

In discussing the question how far Protestants are liable to miss the road to heaven, a local Catholic organ says this week: "We should have a profound and veritable horror of Protestantism; and as the young are not capable of making a mental abstraction, we teach them to have a genuine horror of Protestants, until by development of their reasoning faculties they are enabled to distinguish the sinner from his sins."

Rev. Dr. Fry, editor of the Central Christian Advocate, Methodist organ, was an active participant in the late war, and he is often found "vindicating history." Honors are generally easy all around in these editorial historical duels. Last week Dr. Fry had occasion to smile. He recently stated that Calvin Fairbank, an Abolitionist, had received 35,150 lashes at the hands of the Southern jailers. The Richmond Christian Advocate ridiculed the statement, as it would mean ten lashes every day for ten years. Dr. Fry, however, sent the comment to Fairbank, who sustained the Central's statement, giving the dates.

Rev. John B. Brandt will preach in the Memorial Tabernacle Sunday morning on "The Happy Life." In the evening there will be a song service. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. OUT-DOOR EXERCISE
AND PERSONAL BEAUTY.

A woman with any self-respect would go through tortures, if necessary, to secure a good complexion, but nature must do a great deal in the first place, after which the morning bath in tepid water, followed by plenty of bodily exercise in the open air, helps along amazingly. Select the early morning hours and late afternoons on pleasant sunshiny days, take long walks, horseback rides or drive for an hour in the country, then at night retire early and sleep eight hours out of the twenty-four. Your personal appearance will certainly be benefited by these healthful recreations, but if niggardly nature or jealous time has denied you a soft, smooth skin it can be improved by art; do not wash your face oftener than once a day, and instead of soap use the perfumed Almond Powder, which will remove the dust and soil just as well, leaving the skin very soft and quite refreshed. This delightful preparation is a panacea for the ravages of our cold March winds.

If in need of a face powder use the pure and simple Psyche's Charm; it always pleases and will do you no injury. We assure all that use this powder that the ingredients are harmless, for they are daily prescribed by physicians for internal administration.

These preparations are made by Raboteau & Co., the well-known druggists, established in 1870, at 714 N. Broadway.

POKER-PLAYERS CAUGHT.

One of Them Forgets the Name He Gave When Arrested.

In Judge Cady's court this morning the cases of John Belson, William H. Miller, Frank E. Goda, Harvey A. Nicholl, Joseph H. Thieman and William C. Meddick were dismissed on payment of costs. They are the poker-players who were arrested by Detectives Moberly and Kelly last night at Bill Kerrick's room, over Westermann's saloon on Washington avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets, south side. The officers were admitted without any resistance and the crowd bagged. All were bailed out at the station. The names given were all fictitious and the man who gave the name of Miller was slightly intoxicated and when called up to sign the bond forgot the name he had given.

GEN. PAEZ.

The Remains of the Venezuelan Patriot Lying in State.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Early this morning numbers of people visited the City Hall to view the casket containing the remains of Gen. Paez, the Venezuelan patriot, now lying in state there. During the night a guard of honor, composed of veterans of the Seventh Regiment and soldiers from the regular army, stood beside the coffin. This morning the guard was relieved by members of the Eleventh Regiment. This evening the body will be taken to the Twelfth Regiment Armory, and to-morrow it will be taken on board the United States war sloop Pensacola, which will convey it to Venezuela.

Ladies, please your husbands by serving them flap-jack cakes for breakfast.

A Victim of Cocoaine.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 23.—Dr. F. M. Hamlin, a prominent physician, has been removed to the asylum at Utica, a victim to the morphine and cocoaine habit. He was an expert microscopist, and a year ago was commissioned by the British Government to go to the Bermudas and investigate the cause of the onion blight. He made an exhaustive report. For several years he has made a study of the morphine habit and has made a specialty of treating patients addicted to it, and in this way surrendered to the habit himself. Two years ago he was President of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Turner & Co. of No. 706 Pine street are the agents, was damaged to the extent of $300. Both losses are supposed to be covered by insurance. Nothing is known concerning the origin of the fire.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, REED CITY, Mich., March 12, 1888.—I wish to bear testimony to the splendid success attending the administration of Dr. C. M. Adams, Christian Scientist and Healer, in this city during the few weeks he was in this city in January this year.

Of the one hundred and more people that took treatment of him all were benefited and many perfectly healed by one treatment.

Of the many cures I will mention two that came under my special observation:

One, a lady who had been nearly blind for years, was entirely restored by one treatment. Receiving the treatment in the morning the same evening she threaded her needle and sewed by lamplight with perfect ease and without inconvenience.

The other, a gentleman who came to the doctor's rooms on crutches, which he had been obliged to use for a year, having been injured by having his leg caught under a sleigh-box and being drawn some distance in that situation by a runaway team. The physicians had told him that the muscles and tendons of the leg had been torn from the bone and he could not be cured. After one treatment this man took his crutches under his arm and walked down to the depot and went home perfectly healed. I have heard from him several times since and he continues strong and well.

I was healed myself of a lameness of over twenty years' standing, the particulars of which I will willingly communicate to any one requesting it.

ODD THINGS IN VENICE.

Some of the Strange Sights in the City of the Old Doges.

Venice Correspondence London Referee.

Every visitor to Venice is apt to stand enraptured before the magnificent gold barge in which the old Doges went forth and married the Adriatic, flinging a gold ring into the sea; but what interested me most was the case which contained relics of Duke Francesco Carrara, commonly called the "Tyrant of Padua." I was in a very bad temper myself the day I saw his "relics." The bitter cold had upset my liver and made me extra fiendish, and so I felt in perfect sympathy with the gentleman who wreaked his vengeance on his enemies in the most ingeniously diabolical manner possible.

The first "specimen" which attracts your attention is a beautifully decorated jewel-box all of velvet and gold and set with precious stones. Duke Francis was in love with a lady who one day snubbed him before company. Francis smiled a sweet smile, and bit his lip, but never by word or deed allowed the fair charmer to see that she had trodden on his corns. But when her birthday came round he sent her anonymously this beatiful box with an inscription on it to say that it was from an unknown admirer to the Queen of Beauty. When the box was delivered the lady was out, so her maid took it in, and, with the natural curiosity of the female sex, she began to wonder what the beautiful box contained. It was delivered uncovered, and attached to it by a ribbon was a little golden key with which to unlock. The maid thought to herself, "I'll just open this and see what lovely thing is inside for missus." She put the golden key in the lock and gave it a turn; up then flew the lid and all that remained of the inquisitive maid was gathered up from the floor and scraped off the walls. The dear Duke's notion of a birthday present for a lady was decidedly original, was it not? Another delightful relic of the life and times of the Tyrant of Padua is in the same delightful case. It is a simple key—about the size of an ordinary door key. It was the key of the duke's library in his private room. When he wanted to get rid of any of his suite or any person of his household that he had a bitter feeling against he used to ring his bell and ask for Mr. John to be sent to him (fancy name of course). When John entered the duke would say: "O John, I wish you would go to the bookcase in my private room and bring me the 'Dagonet Ballads.'" "Certainly, your Grace," Mr. John would say, and away he would trot with the key in his hand. When he got to the library he would put the key in the lock of the bookcase and turn it. But directly he turned it, out of the handle of the key shot a long poisoned needle, which stabbed the hand of the holder, and instantly shot back again. John would let go of the key and say: "What the deuce was that?" He would look at his hand and see only a small, dark blue spot. He would think nothing of it, but all of a sudden he would begin to feel queer in his head. Presently some one would come in and find him in a fit on the floor, and the household would be alarmed. "Mr. John has had a stroke or a fit," the people would say. A doctor would be sent for, but his services would be of no avail. In twenty-four hours Mr. John would be dead and everybody would think he had died through a fit. There was no bothering Coroners' inquests to upset the plans of clever fellows like the Duke Francis in those days.

One other little item of my journey home I cannot find it in my heart to omit. The snow lay thick upon the Alps as we came across the St. Gothard. The train halted at a little village at the foot of the mountain. A young fellow with a blue umbrella and a small bag stood waiting in the snow (there was no platform) for the train to stop. When it did stop he turned round and gazed lovingly at the mountain and then fell into the arms of the assembled multitude and embraced everybody in turn. The whole village had come to see him off. Old men and women, young men and maids, all the simple mountaineers were there, and they all gave him a loving embrace and a God speed. Even the dogs of the village came and looked up in his face and wagged their tails at him. Presently the guard shouted "Partenza!" With one more embrace all round, and a long and loving one to a gray-haired old dame whose eyes were dim from weeping, the young mountaineer turned slowly away and got into a compartment. The train started. He put his head out of the window and waved his hat. The crowd shouted after him a God speed, and presently the little village in the lovely mountain pass was left behind and we were steaming toward Basle.

On board the boat, just as we were nearing Dover, I saw the mountaineer again. He was looking wonderingly at the cliffs, and at the nearing English shore. I spoke to him. I asked him if he had been in England before. He was coming to England to be a waiter. He was going to make a great fortune, perhaps.

HOW STONEWALL JACKSON FELL.

The Story of a Confederate Soldier Who Saw the Fatal Shots Fired.

From the Athens (Ga.) Banner.

We followed our bottoms until we got to the plank road leading from Fredericksburg to Chancellorsville, being then near and in the front of Hooker's (better known as "Fighting Joe") army. We were thrown in line of battle three deep, and ordered to rest, but our rest was suddenly disturbed by the firing of one of our cannons immediately in our rear, and as the echoes died out we heard the answer from one of Lee's guns. The boys then knew that the next thing would be to fight, and in a few minutes we heard the order coming down the line, "Fix bayonets and charge." With a loud yell we pushed on, but had gone but a short distance before we were on the enemy, greatly to their surprise. As they were not looking for us at that time and place, they were not prepared to receive us, so they took to their heels rather than be taken prisoners, leaving their knapsacks, laid in squares by companies, guns stacked and camp kettles boiling with beef. On we went in high spirits, in double-quick time, loading and shooting. I passed one poor fellow with a ball through his leg, bathing in a hole of water. He looked up at us and said, "Go ahead, Johnnies, the Yanks are running like ——!" The further we went the more stubborn the enemy became, but there was no stopping the Stonewall men. Just at dusk they made a bold stand in the edge of heavy woods, where they had thrown up some good breastworks, but we made no stop, but forced them on. As it was dark we soon came to a halt. The best of my recollection is that we must have been on this charge one and a half hours. When we stopped I found I had strayed off from my company, but I soon found them standing on the plank road, reiling, as soldiers will, what each one had seen, how many rounds each one had shot, etc. While waiting we heard the clatter of horses' hoofs, and well does any old soldier know how we felt to think of a cavalry charge in the night. Soon we heard the clanking of sabers; then we momentarily expected the dash of cavalry upon us. Our officers gave orders to all that had loaded guns to fire when they came near enough, and all that had empty ones to prepare to receive a cavalry charge. On they came, closer and closer, until they seemed to be almost upon us. Being in the woods and dark, we could not see them, but we fired one volley. Only those fired that were immediately in the road, and all was still as death.

Soldier like, we were delighted to find that they had stopped and were easing their way back. But O! it was not so. It was Stonewall Jackson. Better would it have been had every hand that pulled a trigger to a loaded gun that night fallen dead than taken part in that disastrous killing. Immediately after the rain stopped the charge at dark Jackson rode in between the lines to find out where the enemy was (history gives it as a supposition that he intended making one of his night charges). One of his aids telling him they were among the Yankees, they turned and put spurs for our line, but were met by a shower of balls and death.

The Girls Play a Frank.

From the Washington Critic.

A prank was played upon one of the new members of Congress the other day by a couple of young ladies that "broke him all up." He has lodgings in one of the long row of fac-simile houses on East Capitol street, and fearing that he would forget his number he tied a piece of red tape on the gate as he wended his way to his $5,000 seat. A pair of pretty, mischievous maidens witnessed the proceeding from an adjacent window and wickedly resolved to have fun. They tripped out a few minutes later, and taking the red string with them tied it on a gate two or three numbers above, and returned to their elegant eyrie. About 5 o'clock the member came sauntering down the sidewalk in search of his string. It caught his eye, and his expression brightened and his step grew elastic at the thought of his cosy chamber. He walked to the front door, and finding it unlocked walked upstairs into his room, as he thought, and made himself at home. He pulled his shoes off and was warming his toes, when in walked a lady, and seeing the shaggy stranger she demanded the whys and wherefores. The gallant Member thought she was "guying" him, and undertook to joke her. She would not have it, however, and had to threaten to call a "cop" before she could speed the parting guest. The whole household had gathered in the meantime, and the Member put on his number nines in confusion worse confounded and "cussed" the day he was sent to Congress. He hires a boy to take him home now. Another case of red tape.

Varnish for Turkey Legs.

Paris Dispatch to London Telegraph.

When the average householder, or his cook, who proceeds to the Paris markets for domestic provender is offered embalmed geese, turkeys with painted legs, and diseased chickens, instead of healthy and untainted poultry, it is time for the police to interfere in the interest of the public. Recent researches have shown that a considerable trade is done in diseased fowl in all the Paris markets, and a short time ago a brawny fort de la Halle, or market porter, died from blood-poisoning, caused, as the doctors averred, by the bite of a large insect which had been battening on some turkeys. The practice of embalming fowl or dressing up long-demised birds so as to make them look fresh is of comparatively modern origin, but that of painting the legs of turkeys is as old as the days of Privat d'Anglemont. The first person in the field in this department of industry was a Pere Chapellier, who made a little fortune out of it. He noticed that the legs of turkeys were brilliantly black for one day after they had been killed, and that then they became a dusky brown in color. He accordingly invented a peculiar kind of varnish, the secret of which he sold with profit on retiring from business, and with this he touched up the legs of the birds that remained unsold for any considerable length of time. His services were requisitioned in every market, and the effect of his varnish was so conclusive that it deceived the most experienced cooks and housekeepers, who often bought painted turkeys in preference to birds of the same species which had been newly killed. It would be well if the poultry purveyors of the present day confined themselves to this comparatively pious fraud.

The Monastery Where Chartreuse Is Made.

From the Boston Globe.

One of the chief points of interest in Naples is the Convento Frati of San Martino, situated on the hill from which the fortress of St. Elmo frowns. It is one of the sixty monasteries which once existed in Naples, and is the only one which still supports a small band of monks. These Brothers of the Order of St. Francis are permitted to occupy a part of the building for the utilitarian task that they are in the secret of the manufacture of chartreuse. These few remaining Carthusians still ply their fragrant trade, and those of you who only know the bland and fervent cordial through your purveyors at home have slight idea of the bliss of tasting its nectar, drawn directly from the glass barrel that is always kept filled for strangers who pass that way. The monastery is one of the richest in Europe. The wood-carvings of the sacristy alone would make it famous. The paintings are almost all excellent, the treasures in the museum indubitable, and the chapel, with its Oriental alabaster, rare marbles, marvelous inlayings and precious stones, seems to blossom out from the fretted altar, with its great rubys set into the marble as if the gem were to fasten all that lacework of wrought stone like a petrified flower.

She Has Web Feet.

From the Portland News.

A gentleman living in Albina tells the Albina Courier man of a girl born at Eola near Independence, who is web-footed, for a fact. The girl is now 19 years of age, and lives at a little town on the Oregon Railway & Navigation.

Shortly before her birth, and when her parents were residing at Eola, her mother, who was a new comer to the Pacific coast, was continually making sport of web feet. She took every occasion to ridicule their unknown customs and habits. Frequently her neighbors laughingly told her to beware, for she was liable to raise a family of web feet herself.

Undoubtedly some of these retorts caused a deep impression on her mind. At any rate about the first thing the mother inquired about when the child was born was in regard to the babe's feet. Much to her surprise and disgust the infant was found to be webfooted.

During the girl's childhood the peculiarity of her lower extremities was well known among her near neighbors, but since she has attained womanhood the fact has been carefully concealed. She is to-day a handsome girl, wears a small shoe, and with the exception of the webs between the toes, has as shapely a foot as any young lady.

Imitation Rubies.

Paris Dispatch to London Telegraph.

Golconda and similar places have been famous for their precious gems, but if the experiments of two Paris chemists—MM. Fremy and Verneuil—be universally imitated there is a probability that those distant spots will be outdone completely by jewel-producing centers much nearer home. MM. Fremy and Verneuil have just informed the Academy of Sciences that they have succeeded thoroughly in producing real rubies by artificial means. They began their experiments about a year ago, but the results obtained in March last were not quite conclusive. Their crystals were formed of pure alumina, colored with chromium or bi-chromate of potash, and they subjected them to a rigid analysis, which showed that their crystalline form was regular, their transparency perfect, and that, in fact, the hardness and the brilliancy of real rubies were combined in them. M. Des Cloizeaux, a well-known chemist, who examined the artificial rubies with a microscope, declared that they recalled vividly to him the natural formation of the true mineral's. The artificial productions were also subjected to the test used for proving diamonds.

Curious Beings in Sonoma County.

From the San Francisco Examiner.

Mention was lately made of a wild woman in the nothern portion of Sonoma County, who refuses to live in a house, will not eat food unless forced to, and roams over the mountains as the companion of cattle. Her name is Mary Ferry. Her father, John Ferry, is a wealthy ranch-owner, living nine miles west of Cloverdale. People living in that region say that the life of Mary Ferry is a charmed one. She is said to have often been in close proximity to bears, and they would not harm her.

Sonoma County has other curiosities. On a ranch near Ferry's there lives a family consisting of husband and wife and five children. The children all speak a strange language of gibberish, which neither the parents nor any one else outside of the children themselves can understand.

A dog belonging to John Ferry is also a good curiosity for a circus. It works inside a large wheel, connected with Ferry's dairy by a large leather band, and thereby churns all the butter made at the ranch. On some occasions the butter which the dog churns amounts to 200 pounds weekly.

What Life Is Like.

My life is like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky,
But, ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground—to die.

But, on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept such waste to see;
But none shall weep a tear for me.

My life is like the autumn leaf
That trembles in the moon's pale ray,
Its hold is frail, its date is brief,
Restless, and soon to pass away.

Yet, ere that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent tree shall mourn its shade;
The winds bewail the leafless tree,
But none shall breathe a sigh for me.

My life is like the print which feet
Have left on Tampa's desert strand,
Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
This track will vanish from the sand.

Yet still, as grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race,
On that lone shore loud moans the sea,
But none shall e'er lament for me.

MONEY.

NEW YORK, March 23, 11 a. m.—The stock market at the opening this morning was only moderately active and the first sales were made at irregular changes from the closing figures of last evening, though the differences in no case exceeded ⅛ per cent either way. The market was heavy to weak in the early dealings and small fractions were lost throughout the list, but the only important losses were New England 4s and Missouri Pacific and Reading 4s per cent each. Later the market rallied and the early losses were generally regained and in some cases small fractions in addition, though the three stocks mentioned were rather sluggish. The market then became steady at the improvement, remaining without further feature. At 12 o'clock the market was quiet and firm at the best prices of the hour.

Noon.—Money is easy at 2@3 per cent. Bar silver 94¼. The stock market displayed a firm tone for a short time only after 11 o'clock, when prices again receded, though the movement was for insignificant fractions only. The activity then disappeared entirely and the list became dull and stagnant, without feature of any kind. Late in the day, however, there was again more animation and considerable weakness, Missouri Pacific and St. Paul each losing ¾ per cent. About noon the market was fairly active and weak, at or near the lowest prices of the morning.

3 p. m.—The stock market closed quiet at fractions above the lowest figure of the day.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION—CLOSING 1 P. M.

There is a promise of clear warmer weather. The buds will soon bloom on the tree and big crops and lower markets together will make money for you and for me.—[From A. Byron Cole's Address to His Customers.——Winter wheat reports are conflicting, but so far indicate an average yield. Texas has had fine rains and looks for the largest crop ever raised. Tennessee's crop promises to be excellent, as few reports of damage are heard. Kentucky says her early-sown wheat is in fine condition, but the late-sown looks unpromising and probably will not make more than a half crop. Illinois and Indiana reports are the worst received, the early sown wheat having sustained considerable damage, it is thought, and the late sown will yield very little. Both Missouri and Kansas generally note good promises, with damage to only a few sections. In Iowa there is considerable snow on the ground, when at this time last year considerable wheat had been sown. It will take a couple of weeks of warm spring weather before any just conclusion as to the crop's condition can be arrived at.—New York to W. L. Green: "Cables wheat depressed; improvement impracticable, as prospective supplies too heavy; corn, steadier tone." To Fath—Ewald: "London and Liverpool grain markets quiet and unchanged." ——So far this week is looks as though the next visible of wheat would show a small increase. Last year for same week it decreased over 1,000,000 bushels.——New York Mail and Express says: It is a fact that about all the sales of cash wheat this winter for export or milling by the receivers have been replaced by buying May wheat, and it is alleged that the short interest in this way is 3,000,000 bu at least, to say nothing of the large speculative lines. The stock of No. 2 red is 2,500,000 and steadily decreasing, but there is considerable No. 1 hard here held as "identity preserved" grain, which would come out if May wheat was cornered, and in May winter will begin to arrive from the West, and during the last of May hard wheat will arrive from Duluth, if there is an ordinarily early opening of lake navigation. A good-sized short interest might, however, make some little trouble. After the noon call May ——The bears to-day bagged one line of long wheat they have been gunning for here, the party holding it selling 200,000 May at 80¼c, and he did it very quietly, d'so as not to break the market.'——An English authority states that the average price of wheat in England from 1841 to 1885 was 43s 10½d per quarter, and oats 5s 5½d per quarter. From 1885 to 1642 agricultural laborers were almost invariably paid only 8d per day.—Between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 May wheat was traded in during the forenoon session.

Wheat again fell out of bed, this morning seeing May break to a lower point than it has been before since the December boom was inaugurated. The bears seem to have lost all respect for this option, and they sell it with the same temerity that they exhibited but a short time ago in the way they sold the new crop months. These latter they are rather slow about putting out at their present figure, and the idea is becoming more and more prevalent that July will sell up to near May in price. May is believed to be entirely too high where, as compared with other markets, and as the cash demand has dwindled and the stock is running down slowly the desire to sell this option increases. There was any amount for sale this morning and trading was active and heavy. A decline in all the outside markets and bright and moderating weather started the crowd to slinging wheat. The usual bears were prominent, with Ewald probably the heaviest seller, having large orders from New York and Chicago, but Carter, Ryan, Thyson, Puff and others conspicuous in that side, and quite an amount of long stuff was let go of. Principal buying was by S. W. Cobb & Co., who bought largely, said to be short wheat in the main, but Will Garden stated that all their buying was on outside orders. There was no encouragement from Europe, the public cables noting a firm tone, but all private cables unfavorable. It was a quick decline from 81⅜c at opening to 80¼c, but from this as quickly rallied, soon reaching 81¼@¼c. There was no holding the market up, however, as another tumble in price took place, and this drop swamped numerous bulls, a large amount being sold out for long account. Among this was one lot of 200,000 that was sold out at 80¼c. This was as low as the market got, however, as there was a small reaction, but the selling kept up just as lively as ever. The close was at 80⅜c and 1¼c below yesterday. Trading was active in the new crop options, but all together did not amount to any magnitude while in the first hour there was more disposition shown to sell them, too, and they sold down nearly 1c below yesterday. At the lower prices there was more doing in spot No. 2 red, the May price being paid for all that sold. One lot of 15,000 was taken for shipment by a Southern mill and local millers took 38,000.

Corn could not hold its own against wheat as a speculative article, the latter being entirely too interesting the crowd of local traders to turn their intention elsewhere. Trading was fair, but of a desultory nature, this market only occasionally coming upon the stage and doing its little act. It was affected by the break in wheat and also by a decline in Chicago, but there was steady buying all the time that prevented much of a break. At one time May sold as low as 44⅜c, but it speedily reacted and during the last half-hour was strong and advancing under stimulating advices from other centers, finally selling at 45c. At the close there were buyers at 45@45⅛c, which was the same as yester
